PREMIER LENINE OF SOVIET RUSSIA DIES AT HIS COUNTRY HOME

Stroke Which Paralyzed Respiratory Organs Fatal to One of Leading Figures of the Century.

A REVOLUTIONIST ALL OF HIS LIFE

Great Public Funeral Planned in Moscow—In Retirement Since Illness Beginning in 1922.

By the Associated Press. MOSCOW, Jan. 22.—Nicolai Lenin, Premier of Soviet Russia, is dead.

The end came at 5:50 o'clock Monday afternoon, but the death was not announced for some time afterward.

Lenine's death occurred at his country villa near Moscow, where he had been living in retirement. It came after a sudden turn for the worse, culminating in a stroke which paralyzed his respiratory organs.

Dramatic Announcement of Death. As the all-Russian soviet gathered in regular session in the great Moscow theater this morning only a few of the delegates knew what had happened. M. Kalinin, president of the all-Russian Central Executive Committee appeared on the platform in the presence of all the leaders, such as Zinoviev and Kamenev, and asked the audience to rise.

Suddenly from behind the scenes trumpets sounded the first bar of a funeral march and then there was a moment of impressive silence, broken here and there by sob.

Almost overcome with emotion, Kalinin, who is the nominal President of Soviet Russia, said he had to make a sorrowful announcement.

"Vladimir Ilich, who recently gave hopes of improvement," he said, "had yesterday a sharp turn for the worse." (Ilich was Lenin's real name). The delegates waited with bated breath as the "President" proceeded.

"At about 5:30 o'clock his respiration became difficult; convulsions followed and at 5:50 o'clock he expired."

Tears rolled down many bearded cheeks and the sobbing became general.

"It is difficult for me to speak," M. Kalinin continued. "Our sole aim must now be to retain those gains of which Lenin was the creator."

Kalinin proposed that Jan. 21 be observed for all future time as a day of mourning.

Stricken in 1922. News of his death, while not unexpected to those who had been closest to him in the Soviet councils, came unexpectedly at this time to the great majority, as the most recent reports had been that he was considerably improved in health. While there has been continuing anxiety for his condition since he was stricken in June, 1922, public attention has lately been more directed to the differences among the Communist party leaders and particularly to the status of Leon Trotsky, who it was recently announced was in poor health and had gone away for a rest.

Little has been said publicly in the Soviet official quarters lately of Lenin's condition, but that little seemed to be of a hopeful nature and it was not long ago that some of the associates of his active days were predicting that he would be able to advise with the Council of Ministers.

Great Funeral Planned. Representatives of foreign diplomatic missions and others with whom the correspondent talked after the announcement, agreed in expressing the opinion that Lenin's death would probably produce no general disquiet in Russia but nevertheless would have an important political effect. So long as he was alive, although not actively participating in the Government, he was at least its titular head and his death

KING CALLS ON MACDONALD TO FORM A CABINET AND HE ACCEPTS

Labor Leader Invited to Palace and Formally Instructed With Control of British Government.

BALDWIN RESIGNS AFTER HIS DEFEAT

Tories Beaten on Vote in House of Commons Still Have to Handle Railway Strike for Three Weeks.

By the Associated Press. LONDON, Jan. 22.—Premier Baldwin shortly before noon today tendered the resignation of his Ministers to King George and advised the sovereign to send for James Ramsay MacDonald.

The King accepted his advice and summoned the Labor leader for an audience at noon.

MacDonald's audience with the King lasted an hour. The King invited him to form a Government and MacDonald accepted. He gave out the name of his cabinet members this evening.

Baldwin, on the reassembling of the House of Commons announced the Government's resignation and the King's acceptance. There were no Labor cheers as the retiring Premier made his statement. He moved the adjournment of Parliament until Feb. 15, which date he said had been chosen to meet MacDonald's convenience. The House agreed. Until that date, the Baldwin Government must wrestle with the railway strike.

Baldwin said the members of his Cabinet would retain their seats until the new Cabinet members were appointed.

According to press reports, MacDonald stated his intention of combining the foreign office and the premiership, adding that one of his first steps would be to bring the League of Nations within the purview of the foreign secretariat.

The House of Lords produced no champion to speak for Labor this afternoon when that august body met to hear the official announcement of the Tory downfall, although Lord Haldane, lord chancellor in Ramsay MacDonald's cabinet, was on the opposition bench.

Marquis Curzon, the foreign secretary, gave the formal notification of the conservative party's demise and added that he did not know whether there was a noble lord on the benches opposite who was desirous of speaking on behalf of those who were likely before long to undertake the Government.

The lords received Curzon's statement with dignified silence and as none came forward to say a word for Labor, the house adjourned forthwith.

FALL OF BALDWIN CABINET IN HOUSE

By JOHN L. BALDERSTON. London Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World. (Copyright, 1924.)

LONDON, Jan. 22.—Last night, for the third time in a hundred years, a British Government was overthrown on the floor of the House of Commons by a vote, in reply to the King's address, that the present Ministers did not have the confidence of Parliament.

The climax after a week's debate, came in a crowded, excited house when a division was taken on Ramsay MacDonald's no confidence amendment. Howls and shouts of joy from Labor benches when Labor leaders stood standing on the right before the speaker—a sign Labor had won—prevented announcement of the figures for several minutes.

The vote was 228 for Labor; 256 for the government, a majority of 22. The Labor vote was polled solidly, while only 10 Liberals voted to keep Premier Baldwin in power and seven others were paired with Tories.

The threat that after the Labor amendment was adopted, disgruntled Liberals and Tories would combine to pass another motion that the House had no confidence in a Socialist Government was not fulfilled.

Program Carried Out. Yesterday's program was cut and dried. The speeches by Baldwin and MacDonald were noticeably vague and did not arouse much enthusiasm. Labor members seemed weighted down by a sense of re-

FALL SUBPENAED TO TESTIFY AGAIN ON TEAPOT DOME; PRESIDENT ORDERS DAUGHERTY TO OBSERVE TESTIMONY

ARCHIE ROOSEVELT KICKS THE LID OFF TEAPOT OIL DEAL

Testimony in Dramatic Senate Hearing Reveals Sinclair Cached Records and Went Abroad.

WAS IT "6 OR 8 COWS" OR "68 THOUS"?

Sinclair's Secretary Also Tells of Fall's Ranch; $100,000 Turned Over to Counsel Zevely.

By CHARLES G. ROSS, Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Last Teapot Dome, besmircher of men's reputations, should stain the Roosevelt family name, Archie Roosevelt, son of the former President, voluntarily took the witness stand yesterday before the Senate committee investigating the Sinclair lease of naval oil reserves and bared the suspicions which had him the previous day to resign from the Sinclair company.

With painstaking deliberation, measuring his words, young Roosevelt told of a conversation he had last Friday with G. D. Wahlberg, the private secretary of H. F. Sinclair, in the course of which the witness said Wahlberg mentioned a payment of $68,000 by Sinclair to the ranch foreman of former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall. It was Fall, who, while a Cabinet officer, negotiated the lease of the Teapot Dome property to the Sinclair company.

Roosevelt said he had under duress Wahlberg to say that he (Wahlberg) had the cancelled checks for the $68,000.

"It took my breath away," he told the committee.

And the testimony took away the breath of the committee and the spectators who crowded the hearing room. The atmosphere was surcharged with drama. Indeed, the scene might have been lifted out of the well-made plot of a moving picture. There, in the close intimacy of the committee room, where committee members, closely witnessed, newspaper men and the other attendants formed a compact cross section of public opinion, the son of a former President, impulsive of his father's name, went through the ordeal he had set for himself.

Had a Notable Audience. Watching him were his brother, Theodore Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, on whose advice he had come to Washington to testify; Nicholas Longworth, Republican floor leader of the House, the husband of Alice Roosevelt; Representative Garrett of Tennessee, the Democratic leader, Assistant Attorney-General Holland, attending the hearing as the personal representative of Attorney-General Daugherty; newspaper men from every section of the country, taking down his words; Senators of the committee, gravely listening—all these, and, in addition, as the slim young man on the stand inevitably to realize, the American public.

It was not an easy thing that young Roosevelt did, this disclosing of a private talk of grave importance. Thinking of what he had to do, of what, as a Roosevelt, he had inevitably to do, he had passed a sleepless night. But his manner on the stand was calm, and he gave his testimony as if he had thought it all over carefully, checking it again and again, in his mind, to insure its accuracy.

Made Profound Impression. He made a profound impression. You could have heard a pin drop in the room as he told of asking Wahlberg, point blank, whether his father had bribed former Secretary Fall.

"It's a nasty word," he interjected, with a nervous, slight laugh.

Sinclair's Personal Attorney of Whom Sinclair's Private Secretary Testified—

"Then there were some other things that made me suspicious. Mr. Sinclair instructed me to deliver 3300 shares of Sinclair Consolidated stock, and $25,000 worth of Liberty bonds to Col. Zevely. Mr. Sinclair's attorney, I told Mr. Roosevelt I hoped I wouldn't be interrogated by the committee about that."

"Why?" Senator Walsh demanded.

"Because I knew Col. Zevely had been very active in getting the Teapot Dome lease, and suspected that the stock and the bonds had some connection with the lease. A few days later I was instructed by Col. Zevely to sell the stock and give the money to him, which I did." The proceeds of the sale, he added, amounted to about $75,000 and he gave Zevely a certified check for that amount.

JAPAN TO BUY FOREIGN LEASEHOLDS IN YOKOHAMA

Policy of Government Said to Be Transfer All Titles to Natives.

TOKYO, Jan. 22.—Early extinction of Yokohama as a foreign settlement is heralded by the announced policy of the Japanese Government to buy up all foreign perpetual leaseholds in that city at "equitable prices."

The new Government policy has been given added impetus by the return of two plots of land in Yokohama formerly held by the United States and used as sites for a naval hospital and an army quartermaster's coal depot.

The return of the plots was announced by Charge d'Affaires Caffery, who told the foreign office that "the United States does not longer wish to be responsible for this property."

It is said to be the intention of the Government to extinguish all foreign holdings in favor of Japanese.

COOLIDGE WOULD BE READY TO ACT IF NECESSARY

Assistant Attorney-General Attends Hearing to Watch for Evidence of Irregularity in Oil Leases

COMMITTEE WOULD RE-EXAMINE SINCLAIR

Oil Man's Lawyer and Others Deny Knowledge of $68,000 Payment to Foreman of Fall Ranch.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—The Senate Teapot Dome committee today continued its examination of Sinclair Oil Co. officers; summoned former Secretary A. B. Fall to appear before it on Friday, and announced it desired the presence of Harry F. Sinclair, who is in Europe, at the earliest possible moment.

With a representative of the Department of Justice looking on, the committee questioned G. T. Stanford, Sinclair's personal attorney, about the alleged $68,000 payment to the foreman of Fall's New Mexico ranch, brought into the testimony yesterday by Archie Roosevelt.

The witness and other Sinclair officers denied knowledge of any such payment; and also said they did not know what had become of the records of the Hyva Corporation, which helped market the stock of the corporation formed to handle the Teapot Dome lease. Stanford was notified of the committee's desire to question Sinclair after the lawyer had asked that a search for the Hyva Corporation books be deferred until he could cable Sinclair and ask him to return from Europe.

Meantime it was revealed that the Department of Justice, acting upon the personal direction of President Coolidge, is "observing" the course of the Senate investigation. The President intends to take no other action, however, as long as the committee's inquiry is continued. The purpose of the department's observation is to take note of any evidence of irregularities or illegal actions on the part of anyone which may develop in the course of the inquiry.

Would Be Ready to Act. The directions given by the President to the Department of Justice resulted in the presence of Assistant Attorney-General Holland at yesterday's session of the committee. The instruction provided that the Department of Justice should watch the situation as revealed in the testimony before the committee and be prepared to take any action warranted by Federal law.

Mr. Coolidge does not feel that any accusation should be made at this time, but in view of testimony given within the last few days, he believes the prosecuting agencies of the Government should be ready to act if irregularities are definitely established.

Zevely Also Subpenned. In addition to the Sinclair officers heard today, the committee subpoenaed J. W. Zevely of Washington, Harry F. Sinclair's personal attorney, now in New Orleans. He is expected to appear Thursday.

When the Senate committee resumed its session, Assistant Attorney-General Holland again was present as the personal representative of Attorney-General Daugherty. He ordered a transcript of the proceedings for the use of the Justice Department.

Further discussion of the Teapot Dome case will be continued on Page 3, Column 2.

EXPERTS ADVOCATE INDEPENDENT GOLD BANK IN GERMANY

Committee, Headed by Dawes, Reaches Conclusion After Questioning of Dr. Schacht, Head of Reichsbank.

PARIS, Jan. 22.—The expert committee, under Brigadier-General Charles G. Dawes, investigating Germany's finances, has reached the conclusion that an independent gold bank should be established in Germany with foreign co-operation, it announced this afternoon.

Dr. Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, gave a long first-hand explanation of German finances before the first committee yesterday afternoon. Dr. Schacht was accompanied by Dr. Mayer, head of the German reparations delegation in Paris, and remained three hours answering questions which had previously been given to him and replying to the inquiries of various members.

Dr. Schacht went over the entire currency problem and gave all available statistics. He explained the different kinds of money in Germany and elaborated his views on how new currency could be put on a sound basis. Today he will appear before the second committee to give information regarding German exported capital.

Both the expert committees, which are investigating Germany's financial and economic condition, met at 10:30 o'clock this morning and resumed work. Dr. Schacht appeared again before the committee. The committee sought his opinion as to the amount of German capital now placed abroad, the means adopted to export it and how he thought it could be brought back.

Dr. Schacht was pledged to secrecy by the committee. When he came out he was asked if he had any impression regarding the proceedings.

"Yes," he replied, "I have an impression, but I am going to keep it to myself."

The hearing accorded to Dr. Schacht by the committee took place in a most favorable atmosphere, and the head of the Reichsbank answered most willingly all questions contained in a written memorandum he had been studying since Saturday.

Short exchanges of views followed some of the answers, and the whole subject of stabilization of the German currency was gone over during the three hours' session.

GERMAN INDUSTRIES GET BIG CREDITS

By ARNO BOSCH-ELEUROT, Berlin Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and the New York World. (Copyright, 1924.)

BERLIN, Jan. 22.—German industrialists have obtained huge credits abroad, mostly from England, within the last week. The Stinnes, Wolff, Mannesmann, Klockner and Krupp interests, all in a bad way previously, dependent on French favor and tied by the Duesseldorff agreements, now are solid financially. They will continue the agreements with the French nor renew them, at their expiration, April 15.

The industrialists obtained the credits individually, but the quickness with which they were obtained has cheered all Germany. The belief is gaining that London financiers were given the tip by their Government as part of a complete change in British continental policy, rendered obvious by the energy Britain showed over Palatine separation.

The Ruhr industrialists, ready to sign contracts with anyone in their need, first closed a deal with De Wendel of France, for delivery of coke in exchange for Lorraine iron ore. But before they could conclude the details, delayed by necessity of arranging for administration in the Rhineland, they found the British coming their way with surprising eagerness.

Wolff got the first credits, partly from Holland, partly from England. Then Mannesmann got carte blanche credits from London. Four days ago, as a result of the credits coming in, the situation in Berlin began easing enormously, so that even the smaller industrialists were able to get extended credits. A total of about 100,000 ($500,000) has been extended to Germans, which would have been impossible a fortnight ago.

The whole financial situation has improved. The smaller concerns, unable to turn a week ago, have renewed hopes of prosperity and feel able to resist attempts of bigger industrialists to swallow them, which was their greatest fear when the big fellows first got the credits.

KU KLUX KLAN FAILS TO GET USE OF ST. CHARLES CITY HALL

Council Files Its Petition Without Action—Third Attempt to Get Meeting Place.

The third attempt in 10 days by the Ku Klux Klan to obtain permission to hold a meeting in St. Charles proved vain last night when the City Council did not grant a petition for use of the City Hall by the order next Saturday night.

The petition, signed "Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, St. Charles Realm of Missouri," was mailed to the City Clerk. It asked permission to use the city hall for a public meeting, "to explain the principles of the Klan."

Councilman Cullon, of the Second Ward, was the only member supporting the petition. He said he wanted to know something about the Ku Klux Klan. The council, after brief consideration of the petition, voted to receive and file it, which means that use of the city hall was denied.

The County Court last Monday refused permission for use of the Circuit Court room to Paul LeGant of Springfield, Ill., organizer for the Ku Klux Klan, and two days later Mayor Lackland refused to grant LeGant the use of the city hall.

INVESTMENT BANKERS FOR MELLON TAX PLAN

Resolution Adopted After Address Here by J. W. Prentiss, Head of Association.

Secretary Mellon's plan of tax reduction was characterized as "the most constructive thing that has come out of Washington since the war" by John W. Prentiss of New York, president of the Investment
Bankers' Association of America, in an address before the Mississippi Valley group of the association at the University Club last night.

A resolution approving the Mellon plan, subject to changes by the Federal Taxation Committee of the association, was adopted at the conclusion of Prentiss' address.

"It has been asserted that this proposed reduction of surtaxes would benefit the rich," Prentiss said. "Such assertions are erroneous and ridiculous. If you wanted a tax law to benefit the rich, you would increase the surtax, say to 75 per cent, and then every man, woman and child of large income would put every dollar he or she could into tax-exempt securities and thus escape paying taxes altogether."

"Tax reduction is not a question of politics. Political parties, Democrats and Republicans, do not pay the taxes—the people pay the taxes. I read the other day of some man who had a tax-reduction plan that he said would relieve a greater number of the people of taxes. I have rarely seen a more brazen, and probably unconscious, declaration of dishonesty."

"Every man, rich or poor, owes a certain support and a certain obligation to his country. The Government must be supported by taxes on all of us. No man, not even Congress, has a right to give tax immunity to any man or group of men. The purpose of tax laws is to adjust fairly, equitably and honestly the proportion of taxes that a citizen should pay. It is not the purpose of tax laws to trade tax immunity for votes."

ROBBERS BIND MAN IN OLIVE STREET STORE

Four Holdup Men Take Cash and Jewelry From Julius C. Kaufman.

Julius C. Kaufman, who has office space at the Van Nort Electric Co., 1214 Olive street, was preparing to go home at 6 p. m. yesterday when four men entered the store, locked the door and held him up. After tying him hand and foot, they took $39 in cash from his pockets and a $350 diamond tie pin and fled through the back door.
Mrs. Jessie Evans, 119 Yale avenue, Richmond Heights, was backing her automobile into her garage last night when a negro with a revolver appeared beside her. "Don't be scared, lady," he said. "It's your money I want."
Finding her purse empty, the negro took $239 in cash from her stocking and a wedding ring from her finger, and fled.
John Sommers, manager of the Kroger grocery at 1419 Salisbury street, usually rides home with Patrolman Redmarck, who stops at the store at 6 p. m. Last night he left five minutes early, alone, and was held up and robbed of $25 by two men near his home at 1849 Alice avenue.
Two men with revolvers failed in an attempt to hold up Emil Granberg Jr., in his father's furniture store at 1439 Sarsfield street. Granberg had his hand raised when his father walked in. When the robbers glanced at the elder man, Granberg seized his revolver and began shooting. The robbers fled, apparently unhurt.
Three street holdups during the night were reported.

TWO FREED OF CHARGE OF PASSING COUNTERFEIT MONEY

One Man Released in Chicago Had Been Accused of "Shoving the Queer" in St. Louis.
Special to the Post-Dispatch.
CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—Charges of passing counterfeit money against John F. Shea and C. F. Thompson, arrested here Dec. 29 by Federal operatives, were dismissed yesterday by United States Commissioner Glass because identification was not positively established.
Thompson was charged with passing bogus bills in St. Louis at the time "Mary Snyder" or Mrs. Alice Sweeney, was arrested there last October on similar charges. Shea, a Chicago saloonkeeper, was alleged to be connected with the counterfeiting ring which Federal agents declared recently slipped between $200,000 and $1,000,000 in false currency into circulation, principally in the Middle West.

MAIL ORDER "BOOTLEG" RING

U. S. Grand Jury Begins Inquiry in Philadelphia.
By the Associated Press.
PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Jan. 22.—A special Federal grand jury was empaneled here today on orders from Washington to investigate what is declared to be a mail order bootlegging scheme of nation-wide scope.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Department of Justice officials believe the grand jury investigation begun today at Philadelphia will uncover evidence showing that the organized bootlegger mail order business has assumed important proportions. "They" are not willing to go into details, but the United States Attorney at Philadelphia has been supplied with all evidence gathered by the department and also has some facts gathered in Philadelphia concerning the scope and business practice of the mail order ring, all of which will be presented to the grand jury immediately.

BONUS IMPEDIMENT TO REAL TAX RELIEF

Demands That Anti-Klan Plank Be Inserted in Platform and Denounces Governmental Extravagance.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 22.—Reduction of taxes "to the fullest extent possible" and defeat of the soldiers' bonus bill were policies advocated by Senator Oscar Underwood, candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, in an address here today opening his campaign in the North. The speech, delivered at a Chamber of Commerce luncheon, also stressed law ob-servance.

Taxation of the people of America, Federal and State, is "approaching the danger point," Senator Underwood declared, giving figures to show that about one-eighth of the national income was paid to tax collectors.

Defies Ku Klux Klan.

The Senator served notice that he will demand that his party write into its declaration of principles the plank of the Democratic platform of 1856 denouncing the Know Nothing movement of that period.

"That declaration, my friends, is as applicable to the Ku Klux Klan of today as it was to the Know Nothings of '56," he said.

The soldiers' bonus, he asserted, was the "one impediment" to tax reduction and he declared he could not follow the "mental gymnastics" of those who advocated the bonus and tax reduction at the same time.

"From every standpoint," said Senator Underwood, "I believe that it would be most unfortunate to pass the bonus bill and put this additional burden on the taxpayers of America. It is unnecessary and also unfair to the soldier himself. A few dollars in the pocket today are not as beneficial to the young men of America as permanent, stable, and successful business conditions throughout the country, which undoubtedly will be jeopardized if relief from Governmental burdens is not received in the near future."

Organized Defiance of Law.

In his discussion of law observance the Alabama Senator said there was "organized defiance against some of the sacred guaranties of the Constitution, such as trial by jury, protection of the home, freedom of religious worship and protection of property."

And these fundamental warranties of individual liberty, secured by that great charter," he continued, "must fall when passion and petty prejudice are allowed to direct the course of government, and when an unrestrained mob directs the affairs of men instead of even-handed justice proceeding from courts of law."

The honest and effectual enforcement of law and order by the courts should and must always be the sentiment foremost in the hearts of the people, if, in the end, this republic is to endure. It is the plain and unmistakable duty of every decent citizen of this land to throw the weight of his disapproval against flagrant violators of the Constitution and the law, in whatever guise they may be found."

Overburdened by Extravagance.

In speaking for tax reduction, Senator Underwood said the people were being "overburdened by extravagant appropriations of public moneys, on one hand, and the reckless and oppressive levies of taxes on the other."

"The drain upon the private resources of the people has already become so great that it stands forcibly in the way of business expansion," he said. "It is a drag upon progressive development in almost every line of industrial enterprise."

Stating that the total national income was estimated at $55,000,000,000, Senator Underwood said that State, local and Federal taxes aggregated about $7,000,000,000, or one-eighth of the people's earnings, while the national debt had increased by $27,000,000,000.

"How far we can carry the burden and not loose our footing, no one can foretell," Senator Underwood continued. "But the fact remains that we are fast approaching the danger point, and it is apparent to those who realize the vast importance of a sound system of finance and stability in business conditions, that labor must be employed and agriculture find its markets, and that we have reached a point where we must call a halt on any further increase in taxation or extension of the national credit. In my judgment there can be but one course to pursue and that is to reduce taxes."

Impediment to Tax Reduction.
"There seems to be but one impediment that stands in the way of this much to be desired result and that is the soldiers' bonus, the so-called adjusted compensation bill. In giving consideration to the passage of this measure, it must be borne in mind that from the beginning of the Government down to the present day the soldiers of every war in which the nation has been engaged.

serious skin affections

A STUBBORN rash, annoying irritation or eczema, perhaps some really serious skin disorder! In thousands of homes Resinol has today become the first remedy applied to any sort of skin affection.

A formula developed thirty years ago by a well-known physician in his practice, and at first distributed only through doctors' prescriptions, Resinol, through its healing, soothing qualities, has won the confidence of users everywhere.

Its action in many cases is almost immediate, itching is relieved at once, and often in a few days the most serious skin disorders disappear. Thousands who have used it ask: "What makes it do its work so quickly?" Physicians say: "Because Resinol sinks deep into the pores, attacks the root of the disorder, and starts the skin again acting normally."

If you have been troubled with any spot, rash or irritation on your skin, try Resinol Ointment. Get a jar at your druggist or send for a free trial sample to Dept. 6, Resinol, Baltimore, Md. It is absolutely harmless—will not irritate the delicate texture of an infant's skin, or even raw exposed flesh.

except the Great War in Europe, have received only $6,000,000,000 by way of pension and allowances. The soldiers of the last war have already received in compensation, outside of their statutory pay, in the neighborhood of $2,000,000,000 in five years' time.

"Of course, a great deal of this expenditure has gone for the care and maintenance of the wounded and disabled soldiers, who are properly entitled to the first consideration of the Government; and every one agrees that the man who suffered personal injuries by reason of his patriotic service to the country should be well and properly taken care of. But the man who came home in good health and without injury or loss, except the loss of time, if it can be counted as a loss of time to serve one's country, stands on a very different basis from the wounded and disabled. This bill is said to equalize the pay of these men, which cannot be done.

If pay is to be measured in dollars and cents, the skilled mechanic often receives 10 times as much money in his pay envelope as the laborer in the field, and yet each offered for the country's sake his all—life itself. To say these men's compensation is adjusted by giving to each a dollar a day, for the length of time they served, borders close to the grotesque.

Ultimate Cost to Nation. "It is stated by those who have carefully examined the proposal for an adjusted compensation that the ultimate cost to the nation will be between $4,000,000,000 and $5,000,000,000. If we make this debt, it must be paid in cash sooner or later, whether we borrow it from the soldier by postponing the time when he is to receive his share, or borrow it from the citizen in order that the soldier may be immediately paid. The interest rate and the amortization charge must be paid by the collection of taxes from the American people.

"We must not forget that the great indebtedness of the nation coming from the recent war not only rests as a burden on this generation, but on the generations to come, and, in the end, the soldier himself will bear the larger proportion of the taxes to pay the debt, as his span of life runs longer than that of the more mature men who were not actually involved on the battlefield.

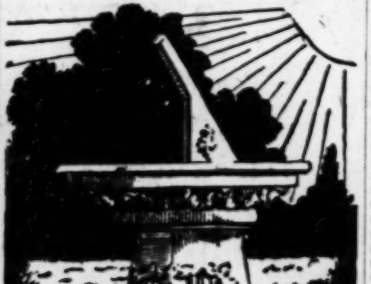

"Some of those charged with governmental responsibility are publicly proclaiming that we can reduce taxation and at the same time increase the indebtedness of the country under a bonus bill to the extent of $4,000,000,000 or $5,000,000,000. To understand such a proposal requires a degree of mental gymnastics of which I am not capable, and I do not believe that the American people take such a proposal seriously. The issue is perfectly plain to my mind. If we do not pass the bonus bill and are economical in our expenditures, we can reduce taxation to the extent of $300,000,000 or more. If we pass the bonus bill, we must expect that the burdens of today, if not the greater burdens of tomorrow, will remain with us for the next half century.

"I am sure that in the end it would be better for the young veteran of today to leave an open account on the credit side of the national ledger, that may come in good stead for sickness and old age in the future, rather than to close the account by an adjusted compensation bill. In my judgment, the only course to pursue that will benefit all the people of the United States and aid in assuring a continuing prosperity in the country is to defeat the bonus bill and reduce taxation to the fullest possible extent under existing conditions."

NIKOLAI LENINE, lawyer, pamphleteer, and all Russia, was the organizer and chief of the great experiment, the Dictatorship of the Proletariat. The career of this short, plump, bald-headed man topped by a tuft of hair, and probably as much influenced by the world as any other man of his century, began in his boyhood. He was a revolutionist, at his university, and ever afterward.

Lenine's real name was Vladimir Ilyich Ulianov. He was born in the town of Simbirsk, of a bourgeois family with pronounced Tartar strain, reflecting in Lenine's high cheek bones and slightly slanting, cynical eyes. His father was responsible master of a communal school at Simbirsk and was very well known among the school teachers of the district. Lenine himself attended the high school at Simbirsk, and a strange coincidence his principal was the father of Alexander Kerensky, whom Lenine afterward overthrew to become Premier of Russia.

The spirit of revolution against the Czar entered into practically every Russian school in those days, and Lenine, with some of his classmates, is said to have smuggled the works of Karl Marx on Socialism into the school and to have read them with all the secret fear of discovery that American school boys have of being caught with a novel hidden behind their geography. M. Kerensky reported that Lenine was a very studious, introspective in his thoughts and shy in his relations with his classmates. When Lenine was 17 his oldest brother, Alexander Ulianov, was sentenced to death and hanged for an attempt upon the life of Czar Alexander III, which was organized by a terrorist organization of which he was prominent member.

Not a Terrorist.
Lenine himself never was a member of any terrorist organization, but he desired to avenge his father's death is said to have lived his life. His active revolutionary work began in the early years when he entered the University of Kazan from which he was expelled one month later for participating in a student's revolutionary movement. Then he moved to St. Petersburg, attended the university, and studied for a lawyer's degree.

He spent more time, however, in revolutionary propaganda among the St. Petersburg workmen than in his studies. He was arrested several times for a long term of imprisonment, and then was deported to Siberia. He lived for several years in a small village, a tiny hamlet near the town of Minusinsk, a tiny hamlet where he was engaged in the work of a teacher. During this period he wrote several books on political economy, which gave him the reputation as the real exponent of the Russian theory. While in Siberia he adopted as his pen name, "Lenine," by which he became known to world notoriety. He is said to have chosen it because of deep feeling over the massacre of several hundred miners in the Lena gold fields by Czarist troops.

In 1901, Lenine finished his term of imprisonment in Siberia and returned to Switzerland, where, together with two of his friends, Karl and Plakhanoff, he published a newspaper entitled "The Worker," devoted to revolutionary propaganda in Russia. He was expelled from Switzerland to Germany, to England and to France, being out a simple existence by journalistic efforts, or was supported by wealthier revolutionaries. Up to 1904 Lenine had worked along general Marxist lines but in that year he departed himself from his comrades and organized the Bolshevik faction of the Social Democratic party, the same faction which he later gave power in Russia as the communist Dictators.

LENINE ONE OF GREAT INTELLECTUAL FORCES OF THE CENTURY; STORMY PETREL OF WORLD POLITICS LED ADVENTUROUS LIFE

Exiled to Siberian Prison, He Wrote Books and Worked for the World Revolution

In Exile in Switzerland in World War, He Crossed Germany in Sealed Train, Over- threw Kerensky and Took Russia Out of the War.

NIKOLAI LENINE, lawyer, pamphleteer, and finally dictator of Russia, was the organizer and chief exponent of the movement which became known as bolshevism, and which he characterized as "the great experiment: the Dictatorship of the Proletariat."

The career of this short, plump, bald-headed little man, who turned the world as any other man of his century, was full of adventure from his boyhood. He was a revolutionist, at school, at the academy, the university, and ever afterward.

Lenine's real name was Vladimir Ilyich Ulanoff. He was born April 24, 1870 in the town of Simbirsk, of a bourgeois family with pronounced Tartar strain, reflecting in Lenine's high cheek bones and slightly slanting, cynical eyes.

His father was responsible master of a communal school at Simbirsk, and was very well known among the school teachers of his district. Lenine himself attended the high school at Simbirsk, and a strange coincidence his principal was the father of Alexander Kerensky, whom Lenine afterward overthrew to become Premier of Russia.

Lenine, with some of his companions, is said to have smuggled the works of Karl Marx on Socialism into the school and to have read them with all the secret fervor that discovery that American school boys have of being caught with a novel hidden behind their palms.

M. Kerensky reported that Lenine was a very studious and introspective in his thoughts and in his relations with his classmates. When Lenine was the eldest brother, Alexander, was sentenced to death in 1907, and was executed by a firing squad in the early days of the revolution.

Not a Terrorist.
Lenine himself never was a member of any terrorist organization, but he desired to avenge his brother's death, is said to have plotted his life. His active revolutionary work began in the early days when he entered the University of Kazan, from which he was expelled one month later for participating in a students' revolutionary movement. Then he moved to Petrograd, attended the university and studied for a lawyer's degree.

Lenine's nature time, however, in revolutionary propaganda, and in the St. Petersburg workmen that he studied. He was arrested, and long term of imprisonment, but was deported to Germany. He lived for several years at Minusinsk, a tiny village. During this period he wrote several books on political economy, which gave him the reputation of being the real exponent of the Russian theory. While in Siberia, he adopted as his penname, "Lenine," by which he is known to world notoriety. He is said to have chosen it because of the feeling over the massacre of several hundred miners in the Lena gold fields by Czarist troops.

In 1905, Lenine finished his term of imprisonment in Siberia and emigrated to Switzerland, where, together with two of his friends, Rudolf and Plakhanoff, he published a newspaper entitled "The Worker," devoted to revolutionary propaganda in Russia. He wanted to return to Russia, but was barred, to England and to France, under a simple existence by the Russian government, or was supported by wealthier revolutionaries. Up to 1904 Lenine had been long in general Marxist, but in that year he decided to turn to the Bolsheviks, and organized the Bolshevik faction of the Social Democratic party, the same faction which he brought into power in Russia as the Bolshevik Dictator.

Lenine's Revolt of 1905.
In 1905, when Russia almost was under the "first revolt," Lenine surreptitiously made his way back to Russia. Under the threat of arrest, he remained hidden in St. Petersburg for several months, and then escaped to Poland, from where he directed the activity of the Bolsheviks. In 1906 he emigrated to Paris, where he maintained an underground dictatorship of the Bolshevik faction in the Russian Duma. When the World War

Lenine, First Chief of Russia's Soviet Government, Who Is Dead

The photograph at the extreme left, with a full beard, shows him as he appeared when he first became dictator of Russia. The other two photographs at the top show him within the last 18 months, as an invalid, having little to do with the destiny of the vast country he had ruled with severe discipline before. Below are two photographs made at the height of his power, a plain, simple man, who took pride in looking like a peasant. Inset at top is a photograph of his widow, who survives him.

tions, and after a few months of the soviet regime, Russia had signed the treaty of Brest-Litovsk and was definitely out of the world conflict.

Internally, Russian life was turned upside down. Factories were taken over by the workers. Great estates were confiscated by the peasants, who divided them among themselves. The aristocracy sought any kind of safety it could find, and the middle-class or bourgeoisie, became special objects for the hatred of the masses. Free trade was abolished and in its stead was established a system of government control that rationed food, placing the workmen in preferred classes, and doling out little or none at all to the others. The use of money was condemned, and grain, manufactured products and labor became the chief media of exchange.

Four long, dismal years passed during which internal counter revolution, in many cases assisted by allied intervention, kept Russia in a constant turmoil. Enemies of the communists assassinated some bolshevik leaders, and in September, 1918, Lenine himself was shot and severely wounded. Plots and counter plots, terror and counter terror, swept Russia from one end to the other, and the bloodshed, and the famine, of these four black years have no counterpart in modern history. Through all of this period Lenine, backed by the solid, strictly disciplined communist party directed affairs.

The Retreat From Communism.
In 1921, when the Soviet government had swept aside all military opposition, and when Russia was practically intact in communist hands, except for Poland, Finland and the Baltic provinces, which broke off and formed independent republics, Lenine turned his hands to the task of building up the Russian revolution by degrees.

To achieve this reconstruction, Lenine, with the daring that characterized all of his major plans, began what he called a strategic retreat from communism. A communist Utopia might be possible in years to come, he said, but the active communism as practiced during the civil war was a dead end. He never intended as permanent. It was purely a war measure, and so in an epochal speech, delivered in November, 1921, Lenine publicly announced the failure of past policies, and explained the need for an economic departure.

"We met with a bad defeat, and have undertaken a strategic retreat," he admitted. "Before they have thrashed us definitely, let us retreat and construct everything over again, but more solidly." He proposed at least a partial reestablishment of capitalist principles: a reversion to free trade; the imposition of taxes on land; abolition of free transportation; and the acceptance of outside aid for the millions of starving Russians.

It was the great peasant class and not the capitalists, coupled with the destructive drought and resultant famine of 1921 that finally brought about the capitulation. The already famished farmer flatly refused to deliver up his scanty crops requisitioned by the Soviet state, and millions perishing from hunger throughout the nation, the Premier could see nothing but black clouds ahead.

When this new economic policy had gained momentum and it appeared that Russia was coming back to a bourgeois regime, Lenine was the first to proclaim that the retreat had ended, that there was to be no more surrender of real communist principles, and above all things, that the proletarian dictatorship of Russia would not be surrendered.

In the spring of 1922 Lenine's health began to crack under the strain. He became a victim of insomnia, and his advice to his friends, and continued to work. In the autumn of 1922 he suffered a serious attack, and for a long time his life was despaired of. A number of times he was reported dying, but he recovered few people. Once met, however, he appealed to the observer as a man of extraordinary keen intelligence. Persons who went to interview Lenine found themselves being interviewed instead. He fired questions in rapid succession, searched for the points he really wanted to know, and then distracted them and took up another question even before his visitor realized he had answered the first.

In addressing public audiences, Lenine drove home his points with a curt force surprising in clear in a man of his thick-lipped, rather difficult delivery. In his speeches, as in his actions, he was a merciless critic of his enemies of his friends and of himself. He once told the communist congress that if the party did not limit capitalist methods, and learn to be better bargainers than the capitalists, that they probably would be hanged, and surely would deserve it.

He seemed absolutely lacking in self-interest. His personal life was exceedingly simple. When in Moscow he occupied two small furnished rooms at the Kremlin, with a stone's throw of a magnificent empty palace, which once housed the Czar. When in the country, at a little place called Tarasovka, some 20 miles from Moscow, he spent most of his time fishing, shooting or playing with his pet kittens.

The Intellectual Force of the Revolution.
Lenine was characterized by observers as the greatest intellectual force in the Russian revolution. He spoke German, French and English, and read works on economic problems in all these languages as quickly as they could be received in Moscow. Having a world vision, and desiring a world-revolution, he tried to keep in touch with the thought and affairs of all countries.

Lenine's supporters in the Communist party treated him with something of a religious reverence, although they did consider him human enough to call him by the nickname, "Baldy." His picture was replaced by the Ikon in thousands of Russian homes.

Lenine was married, but had no children. His wife, M. K. Oulianova, commonly known as "Krupskaya," a plain little woman with thin iron gray hair, stood shoulder to shoulder with him through the most important period in his career, participating in the direction of the political education commission, and other communist organizations. He also had a sister, who shared in his political fortune and had been business manager of one of the communist newspapers in Moscow.

In 1917, when Lenine insisted upon Russia making a separate peace with Germany, he expected that the world revolution would come speedily. As time went on, and attempts at communistic uprisings in Germany, Hungary and elsewhere proved abortive, Lenine gradually came to the conclusion that the world revolution was far away. He never, however, lost the idea that it would come, and that, sooner or later, a communist Russia would live in an Utopian brotherhood of communistic nations.

Never Worked With His Hands.
Lenine never was a "horny handed son of toil" himself, but rather an intellectual, and those whom he put in power in the Council of Commissars were likewise more of educated dreamers than practical workmen.

Lenine was personally courageous and impatient of the guard that his advisers insisted upon putting about him, despite the fact that he carried for several years the bullet fired into his back by Dora Kaplan, the young Socialist revolutionary who, in September, 1918, attempted to assassinate him and nearly succeeded. Several other attempts upon his life were made during the revolution. While he was carrying Dora Kaplan's bullet, he always laughed off any warnings by remarking that "I have plenty of lead in my backbone and am not afraid."

During all the darkest days of the civil war and red terror, when many of his associates lost their lives, Lenine was able to laugh and joke. Foreign visitors during these times said they found him the only man in Russia with a sense of humor. He liked to slap visitors on the shoulders to play with his two kittens and to tell stories to his friends' children. But he was absolutely adamant, and loss of human life was to him unimportant when weighed against the fate of the Bolshevik revolution.

BRYAN GIVES HIS IDEA OF THE DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM

Tax and Tariff Reduction and Soldiers' Bonuses to Be Included, He Says.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—The Democratic party will face the voters in the presidential campaign in November with a platform calling for taxation and tariff reduction, a soldiers' bonus and legislation to aid labor and agriculture, and a general program opposed to whom he put in power in the Council of Commissars were likewise more of educated dreamers than practical workmen.

The primary issue in the campaign, which he predicted would be the most hotly contested in many years, Bryan said, would be taxation. The Democratic substitute for the Mellon tax reduction bill, he declared, gave greater reductions and "discriminated in favor of the masses instead of the holders of large incomes." He expressed the opinion that party lines in Congress would break on consideration of the measures which, he asserted, would more resemble the Democratic bill than the Mellon measure when it reached the President.

The speaker criticized the Republican administration for its alleged refusal to aid the farmers, declaring the refusal was based not on hostility to agriculture but on an unconscious bias in favor of commercial interests. He asserted the Democrats intended remedial legislation both for the farmers and for labor.

The present Supreme Court attempted "to set up the opinion of conservative judges against social progress," Bryan said. It was likely both parties would favor a constitutional amendment requiring six or seven judges to concur in nullifying legislation.

54 ROOMS ENGAGED FOR DEMOCRATIC WOMEN DELEGATES

Two Women Members of National Committee to "Budget the Party for Economy's Sake."

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Two women members of the Democratic National Committee announced yesterday they were going to budget the party "for economy's sake," and then engaged 54 rooms at the Waldorf-Astoria for women delegates during the presidential convention next June.

Mrs. Emily Newell Blair of Missouri, who is vice president of the national committee, declared the 54 rooms were necessary. "For," said she, "at least half of the delegates will be women this year." Her colleague, Mrs. A. McDougal of Oklahoma, said:

"The convention is to be just like a big family, and since budget-making for big families comes natural to women, that's the job we have to keep an eye on all the hundreds of minor details and save the party some money."

REED'S SUPPORTERS TO ENTER HIM IN GEORGIA PRIMARY

By the Associated Press.
ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 22.—UNITED STATES SENATOR JAMES A. REED of Missouri will be a candidate in the Georgia presidential primary March 19. It was announced here yesterday, following a meeting of his supporters. Petitions will be circulated throughout the State asking that Senator Reed's name be placed on the ballot.

Senator Reed's entrance will make three Democratic candidates in the primary. Senator Oscar W. Underwood of Alabama and William G. McAdoo having previously been named by supporters.

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.
The Democratic State Committee session in St. Louis Jan. 25 will be the first test of the present strength in Missouri of William Gibbs McAdoo and United States Senator Reed. It may mean the annihilation of Reed's candidacy for the presidency and assure McAdoo the Missouri delegation. It may give Reed the fighting chance he hopes for in Missouri, and thus may open the way for him to prevent the selection of a delegation instructed for McAdoo "to the last ditch."

The meeting will be of more than State importance in that it will determine the procedure of one of the earliest State conventions which will elect delegates to the national convention. Upon the result of the Missouri convention may turn at least the Reed candidacy, and upon it may depend the question of whether McAdoo will gain strength up to the time of the national convention, or lose strength.

Rural Districts for McAdoo.
It is quite generally conceded that the rural districts of Missouri, with some few exceptions, are for McAdoo. If Reed hopes to get anywhere in his candidacy he must prevent the election of delegates who are instructed for McAdoo, and he must bring about the election of delegates who would, eventually at least, turn to his support, as it is hardly conceivable that he could capture the nomination without the support of his own State.

From the standpoint of cold, practical politics, and there will be no other kind in a Reed fight in Missouri, a cut-throat sort of politics which will neither ask nor give quarter, the issues will be clearly defined.

To bring about the election of delegates before Reed shall have an opportunity to perfect an efficient, convention-controlling organization throughout the State, the McAdoo forces will seek to induce the committee to call an early convention, probably before the first of April, possibly by March 1.

To cut to a minimum the number of Reed delegates in the State convention, the McAdoo forces will demand of the committee that the basis of apportionment shall be the Cox vote in 1920 and not the Reed vote of 1922.

Probable Decision as to St. Louis.
To prevent the voting by the Reed forces of the St. Louis delegation as a whole for Reed, the McAdoo organization will demand that in the selection of delegates each ward in St. Louis shall be on the same basis as each county in the State, and that delegates from St. Louis as a whole shall not be voted as a unit. Such procedure would permit wards in which the anti-Reed sentiment prevails to join with the anti-Reed vote out in the State.

That is about all the conflict that will appear in the committee. Notwithstanding the fact that the districts represented by a majority of the members of the State Committee are on record, in the

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM.
I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

Service of Legal Papers.

MUCH criticism has been made in local newspapers from various sources regarding locating and serving with subpoenas certain witnesses by Deputy Sheriffs for court trial of a criminal character.

In all fairness to the Sheriff of St. Louis and in order that the blame may be put where it rightfully belongs, the following explanation should be taken into consideration by parties who have perhaps without knowledge of the facts in the case or unintentionally blamed the Sheriff for neglect of duty and intimated collusion with parties interested in the non-appearance of witnesses in the case.

The Sheriff's duty is to serve writs, petitions and subpoenas, etc., on persons with addresses furnished by the various court clerks, city and district attorneys. When such papers are received at the Sheriff's office they are without delay assigned to the Deputy Sheriffs, who serve and deliver in the particular district to where such papers are addressed and every effort possible is made to locate and serve the persons wanted. If not found at the given address, inquiry is made as to where this person may be found and on information gathered from the neighborhood the paper is passed along to the next address to be served by another Deputy Sheriff in charge of that particular district. On numerous occasions subpoenas for witnesses are returned to the place from where they were issued because of wrong address.

Every Deputy Sheriff assigned to process service is anxious to have a record of all personal service of all papers in his charge, because the pay for personal service is double to "copy" or "not found" service on subpoenas. Every avenue of information, including city directory and telephone books, is carefully followed before a return of not found is made on any paper assigned to the Sheriff's office.

IGNATIUS J. BAUER,
Deputy Sheriff,
Teapot Dome.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

REFERRING to your editorial, "Shall Fall Escape?" criminal prosecutions are all right enough in the Teapot Dome of frauds, but how about recovering for the people this valuable property so transferred to private use? Is there any reason why such transfers should be allowed to stand? These tainted transactions should be annulled by proper court procedure. Liability for such annulment would further restrain predatory "patriots" from similar attempts in future.

Publicity Without Gloses.

IS it practicable to heat the new type of street car the United Railways is using? If it is, the U. R. should be compelled to heat those cars as required by law. If it is not, this type of car should not be used in cold weather.

Those cars are not adequately heated now. They are uncomfortably cold practically all the time. In such weather as we are now having they are dangerously cold.

AT this time when so many appeals are being made to relieve the suffering in Germany, I want to offer to people who are interested in constructive help to their fellowmen an opportunity to give through the Student Friendship Fund. This is an organization which has done much in the last four years to keep alive the intellectual life of Europe. Help has been given by the students of 25 countries to students in 17 countries—in many cases actually making it possible for the universities to keep running.

The relief is not charity, but is given through student co-operative organizations, which are run to help the students help themselves. It has fostered and made possible new work-students of Europe. To save the lives of children is necessary, but we must also save the teachers who are to make these children worthy citizens. Surely help to the student of today means better understanding among the leaders of tomorrow. Checks may be sent to the Student Friendship Fund, 347 Madison avenue, New York City. HELEN OGDEN, Executive Secretary.

THE WAY TO REPUBLICAN DEFEAT.

The Washington administration is reported to be greatly exercised over the scandals developed in the Teapot Dome and Veterans' Bureau investigations. It has another subject over which to be exercised that completes a memorable trilogy of outrages in the handling of the public's business—the Shipping Board revelations initiated by the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

It is gratifying to note that these colossal instances of misgovernment and mismanagement are beginning to make an impression on Mr. Coolidge. We hope he will be exercised to the point of thoroughly cleaning house and punishing the malefactors. What the policy of the administration is to be has not yet been made known. Will it minimize and cover up, or will it frankly admit the wrongs and have them righted?

The President's promise to carry out the Harding policies does not obligate him to stand by the Harding appointees or the appointees of that eager group which stood back of the Harding nomination and made an honest and amiable candidate the victim of its predacious purposes. It is Mr. Coolidge's duty to revoke the Sinclair and Doherty concessions, restore the naval reservations and put the Department of Justice on the trail of Albert B. Fall. It is his duty to have undone, so far as may be, the shady transactions of the Veterans' Bureau under Forbes and to make Forbes pay the full penalty of the law. His duties in connection with the Shipping Board are similarly clear.

If Mr. Coolidge does not perceive the necessity of action in these glaring instances of maladministration the Democrats will. He will be handing them the finest set of issues an opposition could desire. The Republicans, with their genius for propaganda, could have driven a Democratic administration from Washington on one of such issues, to say nothing of three.

JUDGE DAVIS' APPOINTMENT.

President Coolidge has kept his promise to fill the vacancy on the Federal bench for the Eastern District of Missouri promptly after the holidays, and to appoint a man about whose fitness there was no controversy.

In selecting Judge Charles B. Davis the President went outside the list of machine candidates. To be sure, Judge Davis has had experience in politics, having served on Republican committees for several years before his election to the Circuit bench. He is now serving his second term on the Circuit bench, where he has made an excellent record. His appointment seems to have the approval of both the bench and the bar.

President Coolidge is to be commended for his action in this matter. The long delay in filling the vacancy in the Federal Court for this district is a scandalous example of the influence of politics in judicial appointments. It never ought to happen again.

According to a recent dispatch from New York, as printed in a morning contemporary, a woman has been indicted for "subordination of perjury." Perjury seems to be a subordinate proposition in the minds of witnesses testifying in local courts now and then.

A TALE OF THRIFT.

Thrifty Week started off ceremoniously yesterday morning with good-advice talks by President Coolidge and Secretary Mellon. There was another note of thrift, however, that seems worthy of notice. It appeared in the Post-Dispatch's "Political Gossip of Washington."

It seems that the late Franklin K. Lane had excellent taste in furniture, which he exercised when he entered the Wilson Cabinet as Secretary of the Interior. His office was the most handsomely furnished in governmental Washington. Was this an instance of bureaucratic extravagance that has escaped detection in the welter of larger things? To the contrary. The files show that the total cost of this furniture was $462.50 and the narrative explains that Lane accomplished this by shopping around and selecting the pieces himself.

Such admirable thrift is rare, indeed, not only in public but in private life, but the story does not end here. There is an interesting sequel. In due time Mr. Fall succeeded to the secretaryship of the Interior Department, and shortly before he retired the office was furnished in regulation executive style. The records show that the Lane furniture was transferred to the General Supply Committee, custodian of surplus Government property, from which it was later purchased for $231.25, or just half the original price. The purchaser was Albert B. Fall.

We are not sure that this specimen of Mr. Fall's acquisitiveness can be incorporated in any proper symposium of Thrift Week. But, somehow, it ought to be preserved. Perhaps it can be woven into the tangled patterns of grand and petit larceny week.

LENINE DEAD, TROTSKY OUT.

The Lenin-Trotsky dictatorship has ended. Lenin is dead and Trotsky is out on account of his inordinate personal ambition. Pure communism, repudiated by Lenin three years ago, disappears finally from the Russian stage with Trotsky's downfall.

Lenine saw earlier than any other soviet leader the necessity for compromise with capitalism to save the revolution. Trotsky never has admitted that necessity, making his final stand instead on the issues of bolshevism against the world. Given his way he would have built industrial Russia into a vast conscript machine, comparable in autocracy and discipline to the Red army, with which he was so eminently and unexpectedly successful.

That he is not allowed to carry out his program appears due rather to rivalries among the budding strong men of Moscow than to any theoretical objection to the militarization of labor. His scheme would have carried out the principles of the communists, but at the same time it would have made M. Trotsky absolute dictator, with all the industrial and military resources of the country at his command. He began to loom as a second Napoleon. His comrades have their own ambitions and no desire to be nipped in the bud by a dictator. They proceeded to take Trotsky's army away from him and defeat his projected labor draft.

Russia, then, begins more or less by chance to take her place in the comity of capitalist nations. Her new leaders are communists, but communists of the opportunist wing, willing to pay for what they find they need.

KLAN LAW ENFORCEMENT IN ILLINOIS.

Describing the new Glenn Young prohibition raids in Williamson County, Ill., the Globe-Democrat correspondent says that at the town of Weaver, "all houses belonging to members of the Klan were marked by a white cloth tied at the doorknob." And, when the raiders came to such a marked house, the owner, who happened to be awake, waved to the raiders and, pointing to the white handkerchief tied on the knob, asked: "Hello, boys, how are you coming?"

We do not charge that any of these white-clothed houses contained skulls, or any liquor stronger than the Volstead cocktail of one per cent. But if each and every such house had been a bootlegger's hangout, with all the usual properties, the Klan raiders would have held it immune. It was as well protected by the white cloth on the knob as were the houses of the Israelites in Egypt on the fateful night of the first Passover.

From all of which it may be seen what sort of law enforcement we may expect from secret orders of holier-than-thou fanatics. Some sort of agreed-upon signal or mark will protect each member of such an order in a wholesale raid. All others will be at the mercy of the raiders.

There is said to be no ground for the insinuation that Mrs. John Drinkwater, who has obtained a divorce from the poet and playwright, prefers John Barleycorn as a husband.

HOW THE CITY CAN MAKE MONEY.

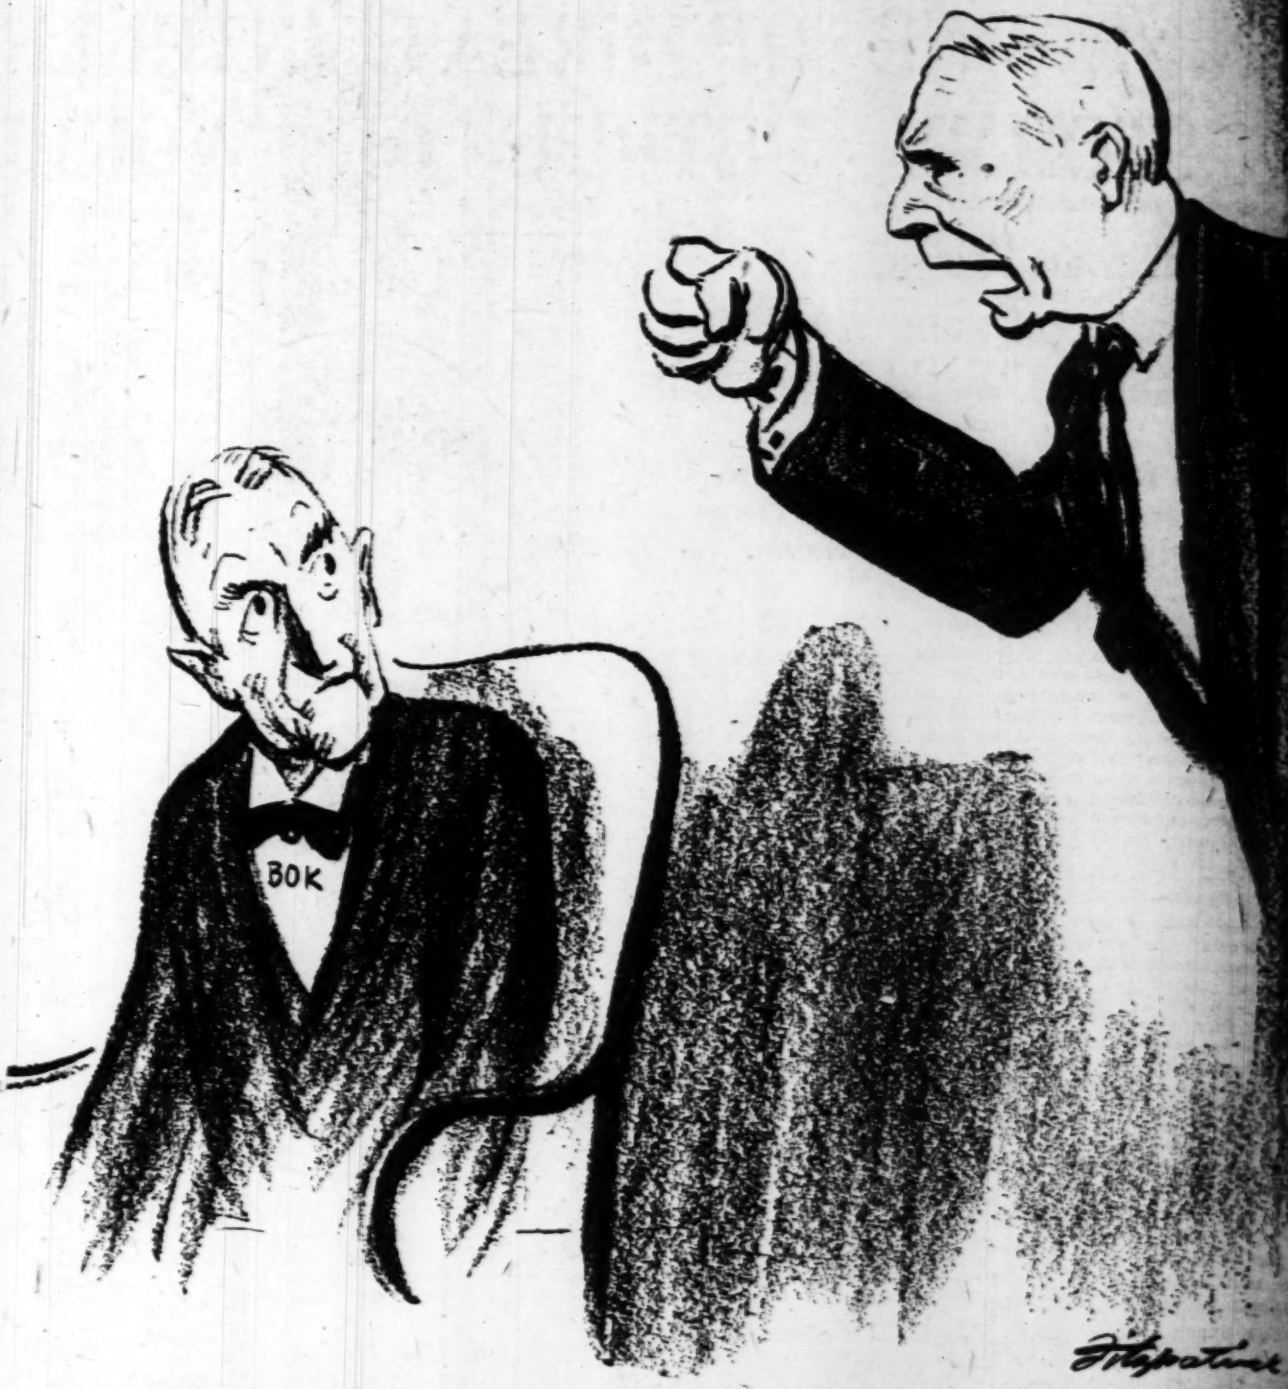

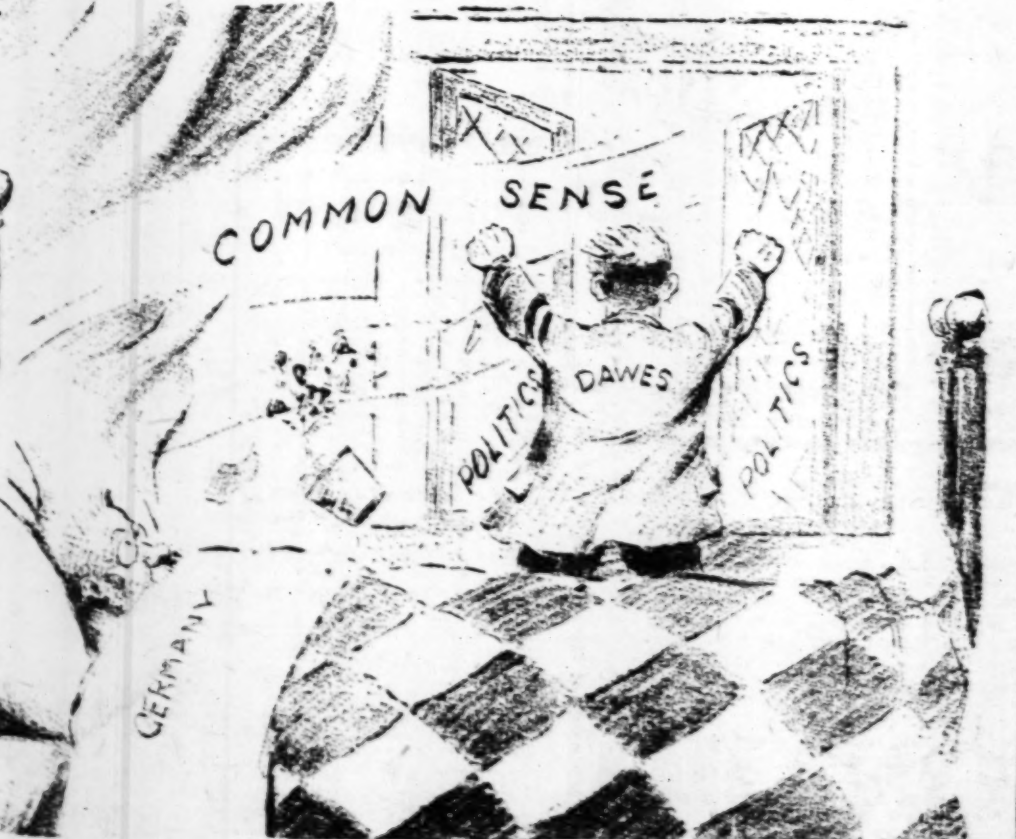

The time for not immediately cleaning snow off sidewalks after a snowstorm being from $5 to $20, the City of St. Louis could make quite a large sum of money by citing all the citizens who have committed misdemeanors by disobeying the ordinance. Estimating one head of a family to every five inhabitants, we have 160,000 persons in St. Louis who, as heads of families, might be held responsible for cleaning the sidewalks. Deducting, say 60,000 from this number as the total of those who cleaned their walks immediately after the snow fell—a liberal estimate, surely, and finding the other 100,000 at $5 apiece, we should get for the City Treasury $500,000.

However, as the city itself fails to carry out the provisions of the ordinance in regard to sidewalks fronting on its own property, it would hardly be fair for the city to be severe in this matter, unless it can and will fine itself. It might make some money, though, after each snowstorm, and do so with a clear conscience (if cities have consciences), if it not only cleaned its own sidewalks but enforced the ordinance promptly, generally and without fear or favor. That would be an ideal condition. Shall we ever attain it?

When it comes to getting the money, it's about 50-50 between the modern painters and the Old Masters.

SYMPHONY IN WORDS.

FIRST MOVEMENT—Mary had a little lamb. Mary—what a beautiful name, and how many sweet women in time have borne it! Think of this Mary, perhaps the loveliest of them all, the youngest, the fairest, the best to recall! Then think of her having a little lamb! As if having visualized Mary, one could do that calmly, or as if Mary having a lamb were the same thing as if Mary had a dog. A lamb is a lamb. There is nothing else like it unless it is a little rabbit. Did you ever see a little rabbit ever did, or she would not have had a little lamb.

Second Movement—Be that as it may, she did have a lamb, and its fleece was white as snow. We may take that last with a grain of salt. After a lamb's fleece is taken from it some of the most intricate cleaning processes known to modern science are necessary to make it white as snow. It is to the inevitable dirtiness of wool that we likely owe the arts of chemistry and dry cleaning. This was no doubt true of Mary's lamb. It looked white, but the poet resorted to its license and likened it to something rather more than white. There is nothing reprehensible in this. The poet seeks the superlative, and not everything lends itself to his purpose. He might have said the fleece of the lamb was as white as a new golf ball, but he could neither do this and make his rhyme nor preserve the esthetic quality of his verse. A golf ball is one thing. Snow is another. Snow is beautiful. It is associated in the mind with purity, and when we think of things as being without blemish we think of them in terms of snow. Does not the poet sing, "Wash me and I shall be whiter than snow?"

Third Movement—We know by this time that Mary had a little lamb and that its fleece was white as snow. That is in a manner of speaking. We are to learn now that it followed her to school one day. We are not surprised at this. Sheep are great followers. That is why we are called sheep. It is the favorite epithet with which those who dislike to see us run after every passing fancy always describe us. Let some old bell weather like Mr. Bryan bleat, and we are off with him into quagmires from which the minds of men have been crying for help for thousands of years. A lamb is a young sheep, but had it been an old one it would have followed her to school just the same. Sheep never get over it, nor do we even get over it. If anything, as we both grow older the habit gets worse.

Fourth Movement—So Mary had a little lamb, its fleece was white as snow, and everywhere that Mary went the lamb was sure to go. We could rest the matter here except for the consequences of playfulness, which are always the same. The world belongs to the glooms, not to the joys. It is not a place where play is permitted. It was in the true spirit of playfulness that the lamb followed Mary to school. Can't you see it gamboling in the blithe manner of a lamb, innocent of any worse design than to go where Mary was going? Very well. There was a rule against it. So

Mary had a little lamb, its fleece was white as snow, and everywhere that Mary went the lamb was sure to go. It followed her to school one day, which was against the rule, and it made the children laugh and play to see the lamb at school. Certainly. Children have what their elders never have—a sense of the ridiculous. It was ridiculous that there should be a rule against the lamb coming to school, and nobody but a lot of old curmudgeons such as run schools and everything else for children would make such a rule. What was more natural than that Mary should have a lamb? And how unnatural, seeing Mary set out for school, that the lamb should not follow! Children believe in nature and the natural. They are for it. It is only when we grow up that we become unnatural, as the school directors were in this case. So the children were right. They laughed, which is the best remedy for unnaturalness; and they played—doubtless with the lamb. That showed the old folks where they got off, and this is the business of young folks. Bravo, children!

J. L. St. I enjoyed the Chippewa Bank story. As a matter of fact, nothing would have happened to the bank if people on the South Side read just a Minute and were observers of signs. There is a sign within sight of the bank which says:

Look Out for the Cars.

Sir: Who says our Government is not inconsistent? It is preparing to send warships against the religious fanatics in the Philippines and in our country the religious fanatics are to be upheld with a "dry navy." Ooooooh!

DINGS IN YACKVILLE.
From the Yackville Trumpet.

The Yackville Daily Bee, which prints its nonsensical sheet across the street from us, goes on to say amongst a great deal of other claptrap, that if we of the Trumpet don't stop dwelling so sarcastically in our columns upon the scarcity of advertising the Bee carries, it will start something. The only thing the Bee can start, in our estimation, is a fire in the stoves of the 5 families who subscribe to it.

Deacon Prattle ran into Jack Sniggers over in the hollow some time last week and he asked him if that was really so what people say that Mrs. Sniggers must feed the cows, hogs and chickens, chop the wood, run the house, take in two extra washings, repair fences, sew the duds for the kids, go to town for provisions, take care of the seven kids, milk the cows, keep the harnesses repaired and do her washing and ironing in the evening. Jack says that it's all a damn lie. Mrs. Sniggers never did repair fences or have to go to town for provisions. That wasn't her work, and she never did do it. His eldest son Hank did.

The MIRROR PUBLIC OPINION

THE SHENANDOAH IN A SUE.

THE Shenandoah, running below gale for her life, had an enormous incalculable number of people who their secure and well-thought-out lives, lowered her hazardous adventure through the night. In every one's mind was the thought of the disaster. Would the ship sink or would it rise for days? A shift of the wind drove the Shenandoah over the surges of the Atlantic. The danger of fire and explosion. If the Shenandoah could ride out the storm and back to her Lakehurst hangar, she would brave all the perils of the Arctic and cover a new world—if the elements did blast her in a convulsion of fury and she lasted that the tempest raging over Jersey. Messages of good came from the beleaguered ship. The crew were the souls of her crew, alert and brave. What was a fantastic phantom of those to those who saw her driving with the rack and vanishing in the murk, ride out the storm. The first had been caught by the radio stations and were waiting thousands. And then she lowered: "Keep us informed about conditions. Little rough up here!"

A fine gesture was that of the speaker, answering Lakehurst's wish that it help her, flashed, "You are helping!" the night wore on, with requests for news from the Shenandoah, with news from her that she was doing well, with barometer readings and wind and force. In all the drama, at last, came the sailing directions, that great sheet which could not see the Shenandoah, but seen by her, breathed relief. She was under control and the wind was through the plumes of multi-colored fans.

Newbold's butler, a graduate of Harvard and Oxford, is a walking encyclopedia of knowledge. He has been an official in a market during concern, but resigned because the general manager committed the grammatical error of saying "I done it." He has also been president of a Middle West college, but the discovery that its founder made his millions in hops was too much for his esthetic sensibilities. So he has become a butler, because, the postmaster told him to indulge his humorous contempt for the society class. Newbold has a strong speciality of odd familiarity.

An unusual effect is that of the second scene of the last act, called "The Passing of Night." The only scene is a certain, light and the orchestra is a little passionate. The drama is enacted, the moon sets, a storm comes, with lightning and rain, and then the rising sun floods the stage. These phenomena are accompanied by a subtle element of a descriptive music. Last night's scene was fairly large, and included a considerable representation of many costumes in honor of Mrs. Brown, who is the Beauty Queen of a regiment at Jefferson Park.

"Moonlight" is adapted from William de Munn's farce of some years ago, "The Little Element of Theatricals," which was written by William de Munn. The music is by Can Can. If the work is not too good, it is a good thing to see it. It is a good thing to see it.

"MOONLIGHT" GLOWS WITH RAREST SHEEN

Musical Comedy, With Stellar Cast, Groomed Here for Broadway, Next Week.

By RICHARD L. STOKES.

FANCY a musical comedy libretto without a drop of syrup or a hint of the Ugly Duckling? "Moonlight," which mentions Freud and psychoanalysis, and actually quotes Freud, Shelley and the Elizabethan Middle Ages! It's quite too absurd for words. Yet this is only one of the exhilarating novelties which turn "Moonlight," shining this week at the Shubert-Jefferson Theater, into a distinctly superior work.

This is the first time, perhaps, that a show has received its final grooming in St. Louis preparatory to a New York premiere. "Moonlight" goes directly to the theatrical capital from here, and opens a week from tomorrow night at the Langham Theater. So that for some we may see a musical production in its youthful brilliance. Instead of in the last stages of decay. The work has been on the stage about a month, most of which was spent in Chicago. The Lawrence Sisters, acrobatic dancers, joined the cast for the first time last night; Allyn King and Maxine Brown are only a few performances away from their roles.

These are some of the marvels of "Moonlight." Its book is sheer meriment throughout; its lyrics are an idea, to the stanzas; the score is tuneful and gay, and the production is expert; the chorus girls are not only slightly and pleasantly vocal, but they dance with the speed and vigor of a band of Tiller company. The chorus men look and act positively like human beings; the costumes are splendid; there are several original strokes in the way of scenic effects, and there is an all-star cast.

The Stellar Company.

Miss King, of course, is one of the most personable belles ever glorified by Ziegfeld, and Helen O'Shea, nimble dancer, is also an alumna of the "Follies." Elsa Ers, with her piquant accent, is a charming comedienne recently imported from Budapest. Maxine Brown is that rare ingenu—one with looks, a voice and remarkable dancing skill. Glen Dale is a tenor who does not squeak but sings. Then there are a number of other stars, each with an opulent part—Ernest Glendinning, singing Louis Simon and droll Robinson Newbold.

The theme is that of the love-potion which is imbued by the wrong people. Jimmy Farnsworth, a famous young millionaire, wagers $5000 that, by providing the proper environment, he can induce a young and reasonably attractive pair to fall in love. The subjects chosen for the experiment are a bluestocking of a society girl and a young mechanic who drops in to fix the electric lights.

The environment is staged in the second act—a cozy bower filled with flowers, an insinuating settee, summer moonlight glowing upon a lace, dim lights, a volume of Shelley's poems, and even a violinist outside who is instructed to play amorous strains on the G-string. The spell works like a charm—but, by a curious series of accidents, upon the wrong pairs. The bluestocking falls in love with the scholarly butler, the tenor is attracted by a grass widow, the millionaire is captured by the millionaire's daughter, and the electrician is led off by a lady's maid.

Electrician and Butler.
Glendinning's entrance, as the electrician, is an effective bit. The room is in darkness save for candles. He mounts a ladder to insert a new fuse, and pauses to make a speech on capital and labor. This mechanic has a penchant for oratory on any subject whatever, and it overpowers him on every occasion, even when he is proposing. The first act curtain repeats the effect charmingly—the stage is dark, save for the glow of candles through the plumes of multi-colored fans.

Newbold's butler, a graduate of Harvard and Oxford, is a walking encyclopedia of knowledge. He has been an official in a market during concern, but resigned because the general manager committed the grammatical error of saying "I done it." He has also been president of a Middle West college, but the discovery that its founder made his millions in hops was too much for his esthetic sensibilities. So he has become a butler, because, the postmaster told him to indulge his humorous contempt for the society class. Newbold has a strong speciality of odd familiarity.

An unusual effect is that of the second scene of the last act, called "The Passing of Night." The only scene is a certain, light and the orchestra is a little passionate. The drama is enacted, the moon sets, a storm comes, with lightning and rain, and then the rising sun floods the stage. These phenomena are accompanied by a subtle element of a descriptive music. that Reed has demonstrated that the longer a campaign goes the stronger he becomes. Delegates elected during February would be much more apt to be anti-Reed delegates than delegates elected in March. Hence, it is the McAdoo purpose to have an early convention which would force the election of delegates quickly.The apportionment question is an important one. Assuming that the committee will fix the apportionment at one delegate for each 500 votes cast either in 1920 or 1922, there is a district advantage to be gained. If the Cox vote is taken as the basis the convention will consist of 1166 delegates. If the Reed vote in 1922 is taken the convention will consist of 932 delegates.Assuming that Reed will have the delegates from those counties and the wards in St. Louis which he carried in his primary contest with Breckinridge Long for the Senatorial nomination, he would have 421 of the 1166 delegates, or 403 of the 932.Bases of Delegates Analyzed.
If the 1920 vote is selected the anti-Reed forces, on that assumption, will have a majority of 324.
If the 1922 vote is taken, they will have a majority of only 172, which would be much easier for the Reed forces to wipe out in tricks of politics or shrewd political manipulation. The capture of only a few big Democratic counties, now considered against Reed, would overcome the present majority of 172.
It would take a good many more counties to overcome a lead of 324.
Hence, McAdoo will fight for the 1920 vote as the apportionment basis.In the 1922 primary Reed carried only 21 of the 114 counties of the State, though he carried 25 of the 28 wards in St. Louis. No matter which apportionment figure should be taken, there would be no difference in the total number of delegates from St. Louis, the city getting 205 either way. This is due to the fact that the off-year St. Louis vote of 1922, in so far as the senatorship was concerned, did not show the usual falling off from the general election year vote.
Reed, through the assessor of a huge Republican following, receiving virtually the same vote that Cox received in 1920. Usually the off-year vote is approximately 75 per cent of the general election vote. Out in the country there was the usual falling off, it being even larger than usual in many strong Democratic counties, thousands of Democrats remaining away from the polls, refusing to vote for Reed and yet not wanting to scratch the Democratic ticket.Result of 1922 as Basis.
The net result would be that the use of the 1922 vote would decrease the representation of the wide counties and would increase the representation of St. Louis and the Republican counties where Reed's greatest strength lies.Reed was defeated in three St.
Louis wards in the senatorial primary. The selection of delegates by wards and permission for the wards to vote separately as counties in the convention would throw the votes of these three wards against Reed unless he was able to control the ward meetings, while if they were thrown with the St.
Louis vote as a whole all would go to Reed.All of this strife for convention control leads up to the power of the State Convention absolutely to dictate the personnel of the Missouri delegation to the National Convention. It not only will elect the four delegates at large, but also will have the power to veto any district selections.Thus, if the McAdoo forces were in absolute control of the State Convention, they could refuse places on the Missouri delegation to the National Convention to any Reed delegates who might be elected from St. Louis and Kansas City or the Eighth and Ninth congressional districts, which Reed carried in the primary.May Repeat 1920 Action.
Exactly that was done in 1920
when at Joplin the State convention refused to approve the selection of Reed as a district delegate from the Fifth (Kansas City) district. It was upheld in action by the Democratic National Committee and by the Credentials Committee of the National Convention.
Of course, even though his forces should lose in the State committee, Reed could continue his fight with a gambling chance to win, which is something more than he had when he went into the primary in 1922, from which he emerged victorious. But the fight now is largely in the ranks of experienced politicians. He will have McAdoo and not Breckinridge Long for an opponent, and there being no presidential primary in Missouri, he will have little opportunity for oratorical appeal. And, also, there will be few, if any, Republicans in the Democratic convention.

BOOK OFFERS TO LET SENATORS PICK PRIZE PLAN

Says He Will Duplicate
$100,000 Award for Proposal That Propaganda Committee Selects.

SUGGESTS STUDY OF 22,164 PLANS

Tells Committee That Information as to Peace Fund Can Be Obtained From Trust Company.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Edward W. Bok, originator and promoter of the $100,000 peace plan award, came back at the senatorial inquiries today with an offer to turn over to the Senate Propaganda Investigating Committee all of the 22,164 peace plans submitted in the recent contest and allow the Senators to select the plan which they believed to be the best. Bok agreed to pay to the winner the amount he offered for the previous plan.

Bok's offer was contained in a letter in which he defended his refusal to tell the senatorial committee how much money he was spending to circulate and promote his peace plan project.

"I do not know definitely the amount spent or to be spent in the conduct of the award," said Bok.
"You must realize that, as a matter of ordinary good taste, I ought not to be placed in the position of discussing the amount of money
I am spending in a service I have undertaken on behalf of the American people."

"I am strengthened in my belief that you have no right to enter into my personal affairs. However, if you still differ with me on this point, and if the law gives you the right which you claim, there is no reason why you should seek this from those who can give you the definite information which I do not possess."

Confidence in Jury of Award.
"From the questions asked by some of the members of your committee it was strongly intimated that I was opposed in favor of a particular kind of plan. It was likewise suggested that the jury of award was also selected with the same predilection."

"My absolute confidence in the jury of the American Peace Award is such that I believe they carried out the purpose of the award and selected the most practical plan by which the United States may cooperate with other nations to achieve and preserve the peace of the world."

"If, however, you do not share
my confidence in Elihu Root, Gen-
James G. Harbord, Col. Edward M.
House, Maj. Ellen F. Pendleton, Dean Roscoe Pound, William Allen
White, and Brand Whitlock—I herby make your committee the following proposition:

Offer of Duplicate Prize.
"I will ask (and since the power belongs I can only ask) the Policy Committee of the American Peace Award that the 22,164 plans submitted be turned over to your committee, either as a committee of the Senate or as individuals. If in the judgment of your committee, there is found a more practical plan than the one selected by the jury named above, by which the United States may co-operate with other nations and keep peace in the world, I shall be glad to give

the author of the plan selected by your committee the sum of $100-000, under the following conditions: I. e., the payment to the author of $50,000 when your committee has selected the better plan
and $50,000 to the author, if and when the plan in substance and intent is approved by the United States Senate.

"I will also agree to defray the expenses of a nation which will give, if desired, and in all respects
give to the plan which your committee selects the same financial support accorded by me to the present plan."

"I earnestly urge upon you the most favorable consideration of this proposal to the end that we may unite in an endeavor to give to the American people the uppermost desire of their hearts; an end to bloodshed and an era of world
peace."

SURTAX RATE ABOVE 25 PCT. WOULD BE BASIS FOR VETO, WHITE HOUSE INDICATES

President Said to Regard Any Increase as Change in Principle of Mellon Plan—Cabinet Discusses Tax Revision.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Indications were given at the White House today that President Coolidge would regard any surtax rate above 25 per cent as a change in the fundamental principle of the Mellon tax bill, and as a basis for veto of any such bill.

Tax revision was discussed at today's Cabinet meeting. It was made plain that Mr. Coolidge stood squarely behind the Mellon plan in its fundamental principles and would agree only to amendments designed to perfect it.

Post-Dispatch Bureau.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Chairman Green (Rep.) Iowa, of the House Ways and Means Committee was sent to the White House yesterday by the House Republicans to inform President Coolidge that Secretary Mellon's tax reduction bill cannot be enacted into law.

Republican Leader Longworth announced flatly that compromise with the Democratic bill offered by Representative Garner (Dem.) Texas, was essential.

The Senate indulged in a free-for-all debate, chiefly over how much Senator Couzens (Rep.) Michigan, pays, if anything, in surtaxes and how much the Mellon bill will reduce to the benefit of Mellon's pocketbook.

The Treasury produced a letter from Daniel G. Guggenheim of New York, wherein the copper magnate applauded Mellon and said the Guggenheim enterprises had been curtailed because of the overbearing surtaxes making new ventures anything but worth while. Where his firm used to spend $500,000 a year prospecting for mining properties, its "expenses in that direction are now practically nil," wrote Guggenheim.

Plan Will Help Business.
"If a reduction in the surtaxes is made in accordance with your proposals," he said, "there can be no doubt that I will personally be relieved from certain taxation. But the fact will not add to my personal comfort or expenditure; it will merely enable me to make a further investment in profitable enterprises, the profits from which in turn will be subject to taxation.
A change in the plan of taxation,
under which those who earn substantial profits may retain a sufficient share of them to compensate for possible losses, will very decidedly affect the vigor of not alone
our own, but all American business effort."

"It is clear that the Administration is making a last stand in the House for preservation of the Mellon bill. Longworth has tried to get Mellon to recognize the legislative situation which makes passage of the Mellon terms an impossibility."

"The world, I shall be glad to give
the author of the plan selected by
your committee the sum of $100-000, under the following conditions: I. e., the payment to the author of $50,000 when your committee has selected the better plan
and $50,000 to the author, if and when the plan in substance and intent is approved by the United States Senate."

"I will also agree to defray the expenses of a nation which will
give, if desired, and in all respects
give to the plan which your committee selects the same financial support accorded by me to the present plan."

"I earnestly urge upon you the most favorable consideration of
this proposal to the end that we
may unite in an endeavor to give
to the American people the upper-
most desire of their hearts; an end
to bloodshed and an era of world
peace."

THREE OIL MEN WHO ADMIT FRAUD ARE SENTENCED

S. E. J. Cox Contends He Believed Literature on Which Charges Were Based Was Truthful.

By the Associated Press.
HOUSTON, Tex., Jan. 22.—Literature of the Butler Perryman oil interests, alleged by S. E. J. Cox, picturesque oil promoter, now under sentence of eight years in the penitentiary, was true or he (Cox) thought it was true. Cox made this statement to the jury in Federal Court yesterday afternoon, after he and E. G. Glenn had pleaded not guilty and 16 of their co-defendants had entered guilty pleas. All had been charged with using the mails to defraud in connection with the operations of the Blue Bird Oil Corporation and the Big Shusher Oil Co.

Judge Hutcheson passed sentence upon James H. West and Henry Hoffman and gave J. A. Whitten the choice of paying a fine of $10-000 and 30 days in jail, or a year and a day in the penitentiary and $1000 fine. He was given until Feb. 25 to raise the larger amount.

Those who entered guilty pleas were Butler Perryman, William C.
Turnbow, J. H. Parker, Alex. W.
Perryman, James W. Gillespie, Leo
C. Hamblitt, Robert C. Russell, L.
B. House, Henry Hoffman and J.
H. West.

West was sentenced to four years in the penitentiary and Hoffman was sentenced to two years and fined $5000.

Cox, whose eight-year sentence is the result of a trial and conviction at Fort Worth in connection with the Dr. Frederick A. Cook case, chose to be his own lawyer.

George E. B. Paddy made the statement for the Government, and as his statement outlined the Government's case, Cox's only connection with the oil concern was the writing of much of the literature.

NEW OFFER FOR SHOALS, WITH FERTILIZER PLANT, PROMISED

House Committee Delays Action Pending Enlarged Proposal From Southern Concerns.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—After a two-hour hearing today the House Military Committee put over further consideration of the Muscle Shoals problem until tomorrow. Assurance was given the committee that within a few days
a new bid calling for manufacture of fertilizer would be put in its hands.

At the outset of today's hearing
the committee turned its attention to the offer submitted by a group of Southern power companies and heard E. A. Yates, vice president and general manager of the Alabama Power Co., one of the companies making the bid.

Representative McKenzie, Republican, Illinois, who has introduced a bill to authorize acceptance of Henry Ford's bid, said the offer of the Southern companies was perhaps the most liberal one yet presented, but he declared it was a "water-power proposition, pure and simple."

"You do not obligate yourself in any way," McKenzie said to Yates.
"To manufacture fertilizer."
"No," replied the witness, adding that within a day or so, "a definite, well-rounded" offer would be made to the Government providing for fertilizer manufacture.

Representative Hull, Republican,
Iowa, who initiated correspondence which resulted in the offer of the power companies, objected to four sections of the bid which, he said, would obligate the Government to subsequently spend huge sums of money on dam No. 3.

Yates said he and his associates
would gladly consider modification
of the sections.

Representative McSwain, Democrat, South Carolina, asked whether the Southern companies
had been negotiating with "the fertilizer trust."

"No," replied Yates, and then explained he did not know what was meant by "fertilizer trust."
The question, he added, has been discussed with men familiar with fertilizer manufacture.

HYPES' WILL PROVIDES FOR CHAIR OF HYGIENE

McKendree College to Get $50,000 Bequest From Physician Who Died Jan. 15.

"The necessity of developing the body as well as the mind through a rational system of physical training" is the health message left by Dr. Benjamin M. Hype, who died suddenly while preparing to treat a patient at his office, 1615
South Grand boulevard, Jan. 15.
In his will, filed for probate yesterday, McKendree College, at Lebanon, Ill., receives a bequest of $50,000 for the establishment of a chair of hygiene and physical culture, and 10 acres of ground adjoining the college for an athletic field.

The will provides that Dr. Hype's only surviving sister, Mrs. Caroline V. Swahlen, is to receive the income from the $50,000 during her life. At her death the money is to be turned over to McKendree College. The 10-acre plot becomes the property of the college immediately and is to be known as "Hype's Athletic Field." The chair of hygiene and physical culture is to be designated "The Benjamin Hype Professorship," in memory of Dr. Hype's father. Dr. Hype received his early training at Mc-Kendree College.

Dr. Percy H. Swahlen, resident surgeon at St. Ann's Hospital, a nephew of Dr. Hype, and the St.
Louis Union Trust Co. are named as executors of the will. The will without bond. Under the will Dr.
Swahlen receives all notes, deeds of trust, stocks, surgical instruments, books and household effects
Three nieces, Carrie Lee Loose,
Ella Blanche Allen and Cornelia
Belle Maguire, receive $5000 each.
William Ben Swahlen, a nephew, receives a diamond stud and E. A.
Robinson, another nephew, $1000.

The will provides that any notes due the estate from relatives are to be canceled. There are additional minor bequests to other relatives.
Dr. Hype, who was 77 years old, was one of the founders of the Marion-Sims Medical College, now the medical department of St.
Louis University. He was unmarried and lived at the Grand boulevard address with his nephew, E.
A. Robinson.

DAYTON, O., Jan. 22.—Fifty

B. Patterson, president of the National Aeronautic Association, said today.

Yates said he and his associates
would gladly consider modification
of the sections.

Representative McSwain, Democrat, South Carolina, asked
whether the Southern companies
had been negotiating with "the fertilizer trust."

"No," replied Yates, and then
explained he did not know what
was meant by "fertilizer trust."

MEXICAN REBELS SUIT JALISCO ON WESTERN FRONT

Rebels Apparently Scatter Intentionally Leaving Doorway Open to Set Trap for Obregon.

Received by Post-Dispatch Radio Station KSD Direct from Mexico
City for the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, Monday Night, Jan. 21.—The road to Guadalajara apparently has been left wide open for the advancing Federal forces under Gen. Alvaro Obregon, fighting President of Mexico, who is advancing at the head of his troops and personally commanding the operations. Special dispatches from Penjamo, where the Federal headquarters on the Jalisco front were established, indicate that official reports indicate the scattering of the Estrada forces which since the 7th have commanded the latter city.

The rebels have left the doorway open—perhaps intentionally, the dispatches intimate, although Obregon is not expected to permit any trap which has been set to close upon his forces.

Reports received at the War Department, railway headquarters and other sources of information show that the rebels' front has been extended wider—from Guadalajara to Morelia and into Guanajuato.

8-GRAIN CAPSULE OF RADIUM COSTS ST. LOUIS $29.975

Pinch of Metal Purchased for Cancer Treatments at City Hospital.

There is just enough radium to fill an eight-grain capsule—but it cost $29.975—tucked away in a sealed vault in the City Comptroller's office. It was purchased by the City and will be turned over to City Hospital when installation of the new department of radiology is completed in about two weeks.

It is to be used in treating skin diseases and in cases where cancer has definitely developed but has not reached a stage regarded as incurable. City Hospital patients will be treated free of charge.

The radium weighs just 545 milligrams, or little more than a half gram, but is packed in so many wrappers that the two containing packages weigh four and two pounds, respectively. It was purchased from the Radium Co. of Colorado for $55 a milligram. The contract was awarded to the company after the city advertised for bids about three months ago. City officials say they obtained a bargain, although the market price of radium fell shortly after the bid was let because large deposits of radium ore had been located in the Belgian Congo. The present quoted price of radium is $10 a milligram.

The containers bear Government seals and will remain closed until the new plant at the hospital is ready for use and an expert from the Colorado company comes here and instructs the hospital doctors in the use of the radium.

Press dispatches from Celaya declare that Gen. Salvador Alvarado is threatening the city, where Gen. Escobar, sent from Panjamo, has his headquarters while he is organizing his defense. Dispatches say that the main body of the rebels, under Gen. Manuella, occupied Salamanca and others were reported near Acambaro, while the remainder of the column engaged with the Federal garrison at Morelia, capital of Michoacan.

Gunboat Tacoma, Ground Off Vera Cruz, in No Danger.

By the Associated Press.
VERA CRUZ, via Radio to Port Arthur, Tex., Jan. 22.—The American gunboat Tacoma, grounded off this port, seems to be in no danger. The gunboat was aground at 4 o'clock in the morning while moving slowly toward the port, intending to enter at daylight. A high wind was blowing, which made docking dangerous. The port authorities sent several tugs to aid the Tacoma during the day, but the sea was so rough that it was not possible to approach near enough to take off those on board. A small boat, containing a dozen sailors, attempting to see what damage was done the Tacoma on the outside, was overturned and wrecked by the waves. The sailors were rescued by the tug Eureka.

The port authorities assigned two tugboats to remain on duty all night in case of need for aid.

Radio Report Says Rebels Have Captured Salina Cruz.

DALLAS, Tex., Jan. 22.—Capture of the port of Salina Cruz by the rebels in Mexico was announced in a statement broadcast from Vera Cruz and received by the radio station of the Dallas News. The capture of Huamantla, Tlaxcala, also was claimed. The statement read: "Early today (Monday) our forces, commanded by Gen. Eduardo Loya, took Huamantla, defeating Heriberto Jara and Maximo Rojas, inflicting heavy casualties and taking many prisoners."

"Gen. Enrique Roura, with his followers, has joined our movement," Gen. Vicente Gonzalez, who at Villa Hermosa, joined our cause, arrived in Vera Cruz today to personally confirm his adherence.

At 9 o'clock this morning, after fighting the port of Salina Cruz was taken by revolutionary troops, commanded by Gen. Brena, and the gunboat Progresso."

Federals on Way to Sanchez to Strike Blow at Rebels.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 21.—A War Department bulletin of this date for the Chicago Tribune and Associated Press states that Gen. Evaristo Perez, commanding the Sixth Army area, reports from San Miguel de Allende, Coahuila:

"Two columns left here with engineers and a band under Gen. Horacio Lucero and Col. Felipe Valle, en route for Sanchez, with the hope of inflicting a terrible rout upon the rebel force."

ACCUSED OF WHIPPING BRIDE

By the Associated Press.
STANFORD, Ky., Jan. 22.—Melvin Wright, teacher in the Pleasant Point School, was tried in Judge Bell's court on a charge of having whipped his wife, who also is one of his pupils. He was held to the grand jury under $500 bond, which he was unable to give, and was placed in jail.

Wright, who is 22, is charged with whipping his 16-year-old bride of nine months for an infraction of one of the school rules, and then of telling her to write on the blackboard, "I have never kissed any other man but my husband." This she refused to do and Wright is alleged to have whipped her again. Upon returning home from school, Mrs. Wright said her husband beat her unmercifully and she ran to the home of her father, J. C. Christian, who with a son swore out a warrant against the country school teacher charging wife beating.

INQUIRY INTO COCK FIGHT AFTER HOLDUP OF CROWD

Robber Reported Wounded and $5000 Stake Taken Early Sunday in St. Clair County.

While search was being made today for a wounded gunman, who was dragged away by armed comrades, after they interrupted a cockfight Sunday at Schmidt's Mound Park, near East St. Louis, the Sheriff of St. Clair County was conducting an investigation of the match and holdup. It is said the raiders got about $2500 from the 200 spectators.

He called upon John Hubert, who, as special officer of the East St. Louis and Suburban Railroad, holds deputy sheriff's commission, and who fired on the robbers, to give a full report of the affair, although it occurred in Madison County, though just across the county line. Two spectators were slightly wounded by the robbers, who escaped.

The match was held Saturday evening, and was interrupted by the robbers in the early hours Sunday morning, just as it was about to be concluded.

Hubert's story of the affair, as narrated to a Post-Dispatch reporter today, was that a group of robbers, who were armed with shotguns, took their birds to the appointed place to accept the challenge of a group of St. Louis cock fighters. The match was to be decided by the first side scoring seven victories in matches. St. Louis, he said, had won six fights, Kansas City five, and what appeared to be the final and winning match for St. Louis was in progress, when the door was suddenly opened.

There was a commotion, and someone shouted, "It's a raid." The intruders, with handkerchiefs over their faces and revolvers in hand, pushed their way in, and ordered everybody to "Slick 'em up." Two robbers made for the referee and took from him the $5000 stake money, while the others began gathering money and jewelry from the spectators, dropping them into a satchel. Several spectators tried to get out of the building and were forced back by other robbers, guarding the exits on the outside.

Wounded Man Carried Away.

Hubert, however, who is big of stature, forced his way out one door and began shooting. He said today that one of the robbers, who was six feet away, fell to the ground. There was a melee of shooting, cock crowing and cries of robbers and spectators. The robbers inside emerged on the run, picked up the wounded gunman and disappeared in the darkness. The spectators took stock, and found two of their number were slightly wounded—one through the hand, and the other by a bullet which grazed his forehead. It also developed the robbers got the night's receipts, about $500. When order was restored, the management announced the fighting would be continued, betless.

Trail Leads to Auto Tracks.

Hubert made an investigation yesterday, he said, and found a trail of blood leading to automobile tracks on the Sand Prairie road, a few hundred yards distant. Schmidt's Mound Park is conducted as a roadhouse and amusement resort, on the Cornsville road, about four miles north of East St. Louis. It is situated on an old Indian mound, near the historic Cahokia Mound.

BRITISH COLONIES APPROVE LIQUOR TREATY WITH U. S.

Draft Unanimously Adopted
by All Dominions Already Agreed Upon by England and America.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Jan. 22.—The British dominions have unanimously approved the draft of the Anglo-American liquor treaty, submitted to them by the British Government. The draft thus approved had been agreed upon by the London and Washington Governments.

The document now only awaits signature and ratification by the new Parliament. It is not expected that it will meet with any serious opposition.

The treaty is a brief document, confined to a half dozen clauses. The area within which the American authorities are to have the right to search British ships for contraband spirits is limited to one hour's steaming distance from shore. British passenger vessels are to have the reciprocal right to bring to American port legitimate alcoholic stores under real when intended for east-bound consumption.

It is uncertain whether the treaty will be signed by Lord Curzon or his successor in the Foreign Office.

Motor Fumes May Have Killed 2.
By the Associated Press.
LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Jan. 22.—The story of Fred Wallock, 19 years old, that his three companions, Annie Bailey, 18; Davis Wood, 20, and Emmett Mann, 19, froze to death, as they slept in a stalled automobile near Conway, Ark., Sunday night, is borne out by an investigation. Coroner J. A. Pence of Faulkner County announced. Local physicians expressed the belief that the young people had inhaled fumes from the motor of their automobile. They point out that the lowest temperature recorded by the local weather bureau Sunday night was 11 degrees above zero, and expressed doubt that the weather was so severe as to cause death.

PETER GOUNIS FINED $50
IN SLOT MACHINE CASE

Peter Gounis, proprietor of Eden Park, a dance resort at Meramec Highlands, who was named as one of "four notorious law violators" in the recent St. Louis County grand jury report, yesterday was found guilty by a jury in Circuit Court at Clayton of keeping a gaming device, and was fined $50. He was charged with keeping a slot machine of the kind in which the player inserts a quarter and, if lucky, receives cash or metal checks in varying amounts in return.

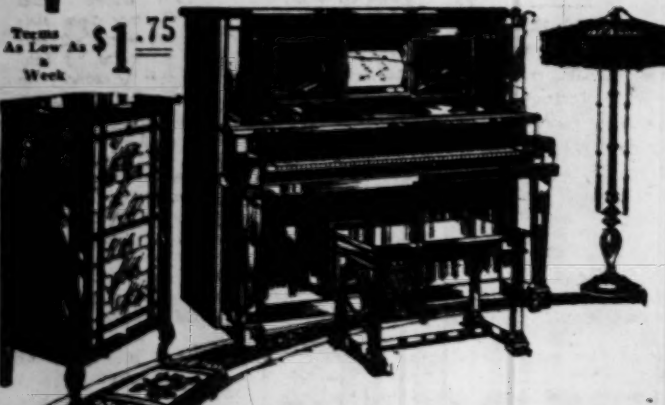

Deputy Sheriff Charles Kick testified to raiding the place, May 4, 1933, and finding 13 large slot machines of this general variety, stored chiefly in a space under the dance floor, including the one on which the case was based. Gounis, testifying, declared that he had nothing to do with the devices beyond giving permission to Edward Dan of 817 Fillmore street, a former barber, to leave them there. "My father taught me never to gamble or drink," Gounis said in response to a question. Dan testified that he had bought the 13 machines from a man in Valley Park for $650, but that they had been worth $350 apiece when new. He said he owned 40 slot machines, none of which was in operation, but that he had distributed these machines in St. Louis before the city put a stop to operation of them. After Judge McElhinney told him he could refuse to give answers that might tend to incriminate him, Dan refused to answer questions.

BABY MOORE BETTER AFTER

REMOVAL OF TACK FROM LUNG

Dr. Chevalier Jackson, Noted Surgeon, Only Acted in Advisory Capacity During Operation.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 22.—The condition of Cletus Moore, 8 months old, of St. Louis, from whose lung a carpet tack was removed at University of Pennsylvania Hospital here Sunday, was satisfactory today. Dr. Chevalier Jackson, noted surgeon, who directed the removal operation, which was done with an instrument of his invention, said that the infant should recover fully within three or four days, if an abscess of the lung caused by the tack heals properly. It was made known today that Dr. Jackson did not perform the operation, but acted in an advisory capacity to two assistants, who are, respectively, department heads of two hospitals here.

At Least Six Surgeons Here Who

Could Have Removed the Tack.

Hospital Commissioner Jordan yesterday issued a statement explaining why he directed that the Moore baby be taken to Philadelphia for the operation, although, as he pointed out, there are at least six surgeons here, "any one of whom would perhaps have been just as successful in removing this foreign body as was Dr. Jackson." The reason the operation was not performed here, Dr. Jordan said, "was that a statement was published (by the St. Louis Star) that the only man in this country who could successfully remove the tack was Dr. Jackson and that no finances were available either to bring Dr. Jackson to this city or to send the baby to Philadelphia. Immediately upon the publication of this statement, I received at least a dozen offers of the necessary finances. In view of these facts, if I had decided to let a local surgeon operate and the baby should have had the misfortune to die, the reflection would have been that I had been informed that only one man could do this operation successfully and that finances had been placed at my disposal to secure the services of that man."

This would have left me and the Hospital Division in a rather indefensible position."

Wanted
a wife who is at her wit's end

WE ARE LOOKING for a woman who is having great difficulty in pleasing her husband.

A woman who has tried in all sorts of ways to make good coffee—hot water, cold water, boiling, percolating and all the rest. A woman who has changed hopefully from one brand of coffee to another—and all without success.

We have a very hopeful message for this woman.

When we were developing the blend of Premier Coffee, we made a fine collection of men grumblers. We asked everybody to give us names of men who were notoriously hard to please. We kept working away at the blend of Premier until we had satisfied those men, many of whom had never before in their lives been satisfied with coffee.

It was a great thing for the wives of those men. Many of them were almost at their wit's end.

We are perfectly sure, madam, that your husband is not harder to please than these very critical husbands whom we worked with for so many months. He wants what they wanted—a coffee blended for men. He will be happy when he gets that, and not before.

Last Friday to Be Investigated.

The first step toward clarifying the local professional boxing situation will be taken this afternoon when members of the City Boxing Commission, appointed by the Mayor under power of a city ordinance, will meet to discuss future plans and consider what action shall be taken against persons responsible for the failure of last Friday night's show.

The Angelica Physical Culture Club, which organization held the show in question, has petitioned Circuit Judge Frey to grant a restraining order against State officials from interfering with future entertainment. Judge Frey has postponed for an indefinite period the hearing upon this petition, but meanwhile a temporary injunction is in force.

It is possible that the commission will bar from exhibitions in this city those fighters and managers who refused to go through with their bouts last Friday.

This, the third challenge match in as many seasons, is in the nature of a "rubber." Schaefer defeated Hoppe for the championship here in 1931 after Hoppe had held it continuously since 1913, but lost it again to him last year in the tournament at New York.

Schaefer played a steady, and at times, a brilliant game, going out in 12 innings with an unfinished score of 48 and an average of 38 6-13. Although the scoreboard shows five bank innings and another of a single score for the challenger, it does not reflect on the worth of his game, but explains an apparent dilemma to play safe and leave Hoppe in as difficult position as possible.

Schaefer's control and his judgment of distance was near perfect, but frequent lineups during his long runs indicated that his judgment of speed was not so good. In his high run of 176 he had to play 15 masses and 10 bank shots.

The challenger played a tight game, and although frequently left with difficult leaves, his marvelous run-table playing enabled him to gather the balls and nurse them along for high runs.

The score by innings: Schaefer, 1, 32, 0, 0, 0, 7, 35, 0, 23, 69, 48; total, 500. Hoppe, 0, 17, 0, 0, 18, 1, 4, 180, 27, 1, 112; total, 563.

High runs—Schaefer, 170; Hoppe, 180.

Averages—Schaefer, 38 6-13; Hoppe, 30 9-12.

Activity Centers in Few Issues—Rally in Foreign Exchange Market a Feature of Day—Bonds Generally Firm.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch, Jan. 22.—The New York Stock Exchange today was characterized by irregularity and small changes. Activity was centered in a few issues, and the foreign exchange market showed a notable rally. Bonds were generally firm.

The stock market opened with a slight advance, but soon turned to a decline. The Dow Jones industrial average closed at 111.14, down from 111.54 the previous day. The volume of trading was light, with only about 10 million shares changing hands.

The foreign exchange market was the most active sector, with the dollar showing a significant rally against the British pound. The pound closed at 154.12, up from 153.88. This was due to a report that the British government was considering a new financial plan.

Bonds were generally firm, with the 30-year Treasury bond showing a slight advance. The price of the 30-year Treasury bond was 101.14, up from 101.04. The 10-year Treasury bond was also firm, closing at 100.14.

OFFER FOR BRIDGETON FIELD BY FLYING CLUB

Taking Over of Lease With the Right to Buy at End of Five Years Proposed.

The Flying Club of St. Louis, meeting last night at the Coronado Hotel, voted to make a proposal to the St. Louis Aeronautic Corporation to take over the lease on Lambert-St. Louis Field, Bridgeton, where the international air races were held in October, with a view to purchasing the field at the end of five years.

Harold M. Babby submitted the resolution. A resolution to increase the initiation fee to $50 and the annual dues to $25, as one means of providing revenue with which to purchase the field, also was adopted.

According to the proposal the Aeronautic Corporation would relinquish the $12,000 surplus remaining after all expenses of the air races were met, and this money would be held in trust pending the consummation of the deal at the end of five years, when the Flying Club expects to have an additional $12,000. With this $25,000, a first payment on the field, on which there is an option to purchase for $87,000, would be made.

The Flying Club also voted to erect a clubhouse on the field with money already raised for that purpose.

Lambert-St. Louis Field has 163 acres and will be a terminus of the transcontinental air mail service when it is brought to St. Louis.

Charles Carroll, vice president of Butler Brothers, who has been in conference with Postoffice Department officials at Washington, informed the club last night that it was likely that an air mail service touching St. Louis would be started this year.

Oklahoma Indian Girl Pays Ex-Husband $50,000, and a Woman Wants $25,000.

By the Associated Press.
MUSKOGEE, Ok., Jan. 22.—Five thousand dollars daily from oil raised Exie Fife, 19-year-old Creek Indian girl, from poverty to riches, but it has not brought her happiness.

Last week she agreed to pay $50,000 as a divorce settlement to Berlin Jackson, the farmer-boy sweetheart she married soon after oil was discovered on her allotment and she left a sod house on the prairie for a modern home with three expensive automobiles in her garage.

Today process servers were seeking her at Bufaula, her home, with papers signed by Mrs. Ollie Carr, wife of Henry Carr, a Deputy Sheriff, alleging that the rich Indian girl had alienated the affections of her husband. Mrs. Carr asks for $25,000 damages.

Friends of the girl said she was preparing to leave for California with a bungalow as Hollywood as her objective.

—A Continued Story—

SYNOPSIS

Helen, with her husband, Cyril (Lord Hensham), arrives at the Hensham country house, one of England's famous country houses. Cyril is passionately in love with his wife, but she is unaware of it. When he married her he had wanted her to throw herself into his arms, and instead she had walked up her marble staircase. Cyril was over 40 when he married. He found Helen living with her father, who was a gambler, in a pension in Italy.

Helen has called on her new neighbors, the Baldwins, for the first time. She has presided at a charity bazaar given on the Baldwin's estate. John Baldwin had acquired an immense fortune during the war. They have a young son who is still in school. Their mother, Toby, lives in a small house on the Baldwin estate.

Cyril's mother comes to Helen's Court for a visit. Helen, at Cyril's suggestion, invites Toby to dinner to meet her. Helen finds herself intensely interested in Toby. She goes to his cottage, where she has dinner alone with him.

Helen gives a house party in the country. Christopher Tyndale, a lifelong friend of Cyril's, is one of the guests. He is in love with Helen. Toby comes over for the dance which Helen gives the first night of the house party. He kisses Helen before he leaves.

Later Helen goes up to London for the season. Cyril joins Christopher in Scotland for a week's shooting. Helen goes back to the country. She and Toby spend a delightful week riding, walking, and dining together. When Cyril returns to Helen's Court Toby goes up to London. He meets Helen's friend, Selma, there.

INSTALLMENT XXXI
TOBY DECIDES TO LEAVE ENGLAND.

"BUT you like rather a lot of women, don't you?" Toby asked. "I suppose I do, but I never think I do. I love Helen and Virginia and my cousin, Ann Wendover, and I am tremendously attracted by Lisa Raeburn and Ariadne Amberley. Do you know Ariadne?"

"The wife of the vicar?"

"Yes. She was the most enchantingly selfish person in the world, absurdly gifted and criminally lazy. One fine day she married Robert out of love for her love for her. The pedestal he put her on amused her. It fed both her amour propre and her irony. Ariadne saw through everything, even herself. And now she worships the ground her husband treads on and spends her whole time trying to show him that she is on her knees. But he can't see it. The only fly in the ointment is her irritation with him for having been so completely taken in by the old Ariadne that he can't see any difference in the new one. Love is so de-individualizing, don't you think?"

"De-individualizing?"

"It is a horrible word. What I mean is—lovers are so indifferent, so unattractive. They don't love the other person because the other person is simply their own passion."

"I see."

Toby was thinking. Selma with her precocious intelligence and her extreme youth was a fascinating creature. Not irritating because she was so natural. And none of her discoveries about life had been blurred and tarnished by personal experiences, the desperate necessity of keeping some illusions and some hopes even at the cost of a guilty secret censorship of thoughts and memories.

"I am going away soon," Toby said abruptly, with a certainty of some one who has just made up his mind.

"Where to?"

"To Tibet, I think."

"How wonderful," she said enthusiastically, "to get right away." "Before I go, will you do something for me?"

"Of course."

"Will you let me see a good deal of you?"

"Why?"

Her tone was questioning, not provocative. "Because," he hesitated, wanting to say "you are charming," but he absolutely unself-conscious look of interest stopped him. "Because," he smiled, "you are such a wonderful Baedeker to life. All of the stars are in the right places."

"Thank you," she said, and a faint pinkness which crept over her face showed him that he had chosen once more, with his usual, unerring touch, the right way to please.

Virginia was lying on the sofa in her boudoir. The sun blinds were drawn, but it was unbearably hot, and her head was throbbing. The whole afternoon she had been running, and she seemed to have brought back all of the heat and the noise, the smells and the dirt with her. The world seemed one large conspiracy of wickedness and futility—all of her friends leading useless, self-indulgent lives, and which was almost worse, not even knowing it. She was unutterably weary. "If only there were a revolution," she thought, "it might at least save one's conscience." And then she reproached herself for the cowardice of being prepared for one moment to accept violence as an outlet—violence, which is never a solution. Illness and never seemed to have closed in on her from every side, until she felt guilty at being comparatively well and having enough to eat.

"I am unutterably tired. That is what it is," she thought. She remembered the way the rich talked about strikes and wages and the law, self-indulgent lower classes. It made her sick. What a fool the good of thinking about it! Even people who said silly things often did kind ones. Only the East End didn't somehow make kindness seem much of a solution. Something much more drastic was needed—imagination, perhaps.

Her back was aching and all of her limbs felt like lead. She pictured the sea at Deauville and Mathew in white flannels smiling into the sun with his eyes wrinkling up. Suddenly she felt herself completely overmastered by her longing for Mathew. What a fool she was not to marry him. What did it matter even if he did stop loving her? That might happen in any case and at any rate she would have his name on the envelope of her letters—his precious, beloved name—and she would be able to go into his room and see his shoes under the dressing table and little things that he had fingered about. If only he would come now. Now at this moment.

The door opened and in he came. His little voice, touching you like a kiss on the forehead, made his emotions seem rather reflected on it than reflected in it—tenderness.

MEDITATIONS OF A

MARRIED WOMAN
By HELEN ROWLAND

HAVE you a little "hero" in your home?

There are three times in a man's life when he is a hero.

When he faces the altar beside a woman.

When he quixotically insures his life for her.

When he buys her ticket and pays her way to Reno, so that she may tell the court what a "brute" he is.

But, somehow, at those times, NO man feels like a hero.

He FEELS like a "hero" when he helps wipe the breakfast dishes on the maid's day off.

When he opens his own egg and butters his own toast.

When he finds his own towels and draws his own bath.

When he offers his wife the first look at the morning newspaper.

When he uncomplainingly wears a shirt with a button missing.

When he comes in 10 minutes early (instead of the usual 20 minutes late) and restrains his indignation at not finding dinner on the table.

When he gives up the most comfortable chair in the house to his mother-in-law for a whole evening.

When he "pulls out" of a poker game before 3:30 a. m. and with $3 still in his pocket.

When he refrains from flirting with his wife's pretty cousin.

When he lets his wife read her own letters first.

When he shaves after dinner.

When he sits through a mushy moving picture show, so that his wife can enjoy a good cry.

When he cuts himself with his razor, hammers his thumb, or burns his mouth with the hot coffee—and refrains from swearing.

When he lets his wife hear "Thais" instead of to see Al Jolson, or to a Maeterlinck play instead of to a girl show.

When he eats beef stew or chicken hash for dinner without a murmur.

When he refrains from reproving his wife for forgetting that he forgot to kiss her good-by that morning.

When he puts the studs in his evening clothes.

When he stays at home for a whole evening, does before the fire, and wonders "what the boys are doing now."

He may have done most of these things for 30 years without noticing it.

But THAT was when he was a carefree bachelor—and had no wife to act as a shock absorber between him and all the disagreeable little things in life.

Have YOU a little "hero" in your home?

Fashion Frills

A hat of remarkable shape shown in Paris today is an exaggeration of a jockey cap. It has little brim in back, but in front the brim extends for nearly two feet. The crown, unlike a jockey's cap, is high.

The lovely white crepes of soft silk being worn in Paris by young women have only a bit of the embroidery, though this is apt to be very striking. Often it is lacquered, and takes the form of motifs arranged in a narrow panel from armpit to hem.

Fawn and cocoa are among the chic shades at present in London. Half the women who take tea in the Berkeley are wearing one tint or the other these days, and setting off their gowns with rose-tinted pearls.

An interesting new blouse of crepe de chine worn today does its best to be mannish. Not only is it severely tailored but it even has a shirt bosom effect of shirring.

OYSTER PLANT.

Trim and scrape a large piece of the oyster plant, then cut into short pieces. Boil in salted water until tender. Have ready two cupsful of cream sauce in which put a tablespoonful of well-washed capers and a diced hard-boiled egg. Just before serving add the juice of an onion to the sauce.

Do Men Like Eccentric or Gowns for Women

By SARAH COMSTOCK.

"SUPPOSE," I put it to a famous male dress designer, a beautiful and fashionable woman suddenly found herself marooned on a desert island. There isn't a man in sight—or a woman either. Nobody more critical to observe her than the monkeys in the surrounding coconut trees.

"But suppose," also, that her trunk of elegant costumes—costumes designed by you, for instance—has been washed ashore with her. She turns the key, opens the trunk, glances over the crepes and velvets and broadsides—and then—

"What I want to know is: does she take out those costumes, as she would in St. Louis, and 'dress up'?" Or, since there are only the monkeys in the coconut palms to admire, you understand—

The dress designer folded his arms and leaned back in profound thought. It was a problem found thought. It was a problem for an authority upon the psychology of dress. He sat for long in the midst of the medieval French carved luxury of his private office, and pondered.

"I should say," he brought forth at last, a quizzical smile twinkling the corners of his mouth, "that the probability is, she lets the lid of the trunk sadly fall, turns away in a weary depression, and remains in the same traveling dress she had on when she landed."

"From which I gather that you believe that women dress to please others, rather than for the mere pleasure of dressing?"

"Well, both elements enter in, to be sure; but taken by and large, women like to please others."

Those That Dress for Men.

"To what extent do women dress to please men?" It was pinning him down, and he paused. Then again that quizzical smile, and—

"About ninety-five per cent. I should say, as nearly as I can reduce it to figures. That is, as soon as a girl is old enough to be conscious of the desire to please men. And as long as she remains young enough. And that pretty well takes in the whole range of life."

"Ah! Now we're coming to it. What keys to such much-vaunted questions lie within that vexed head?" This dapper little man, flawlessly tailored, but wholly without affectation—dressed as the man of business, and seriously bent upon one of the greatest of arts—stands father-confessor to the world of wealth and fashion. To him it is given to know the fads and follies, the domestic problems, the passionate vanities, the very soul-secrets of Society. For if a feminine soul cannot express itself in a water-green crepe, broadside, through what medium, forsooth, can it speak? Verily the secrets of hearts are wrapped in the silken swathings that emanate from his shop. And his conclusions, that he has reached concerning men, women and clothes are based upon an experience and an instinctive knowledge of human nature that combined make him an authority of the first rank.

"Unquestionably, women dress to please men," he declares, "in far the majority of cases. At least, that is the woman's intention. But she doesn't always achieve her end."

"Perhaps you agree with those who consider the average woman's taste to be demure—that men are interested in more direct efforts?" He looked the question coolly in the eye. "I don't agree at all," he asserted. "I hold just the opposite. Men—were speaking in generalities—do not like daring, or extreme gowns on women. They don't like the eccentric, the outre. In short, they don't like anything that causes the woman to be stared at, and makes talk."

How Women Must Dress.

"And how, then," I inquired, "shall women dress—that, like the lady of Biblical history, she may win favor in the sight of her lord?"

"In perfect taste," replied the Oracle.

He enlarged upon the topic. "Men who are sophisticated and have good taste themselves want to see good taste shown in the women they admire—surely they don't find it in a bizarre costume. Some daring effect may catch the eye—for a passing hour they may admire it on the stage, or in—ahem—another type of woman. But a man wants his fiancée or his wife to wear such garments as shall not attract undue attention, and yet shall be altogether beautiful in the last analysis. And a man has a keen eye for harmony—trust him for that, his judgment is sound. He catches the charm of rhythmic lines, soft colors, pliable fabrics. He knows whether a woman's

The great portrait painters of the world have done this; the costume designer has it in his power also."

The speaker, an exponent of the art of individual dress, believes that every woman should know her own style and hold it to it, merely adapting it to the shifting tides of fashion. And, while admitting that minor changes—as from short to long sleeves, round to square neck, and so on—add piquancy and break monotony—he claims that the silhouette in the main should be unchanging, and explores a waist line which hops at one bound from five inches above to five inches below the normal. "The woman worth while," he declares, "expresses through her personality an individuality that

Women Dress to Please Men

Mr. Frank Alvah Parsons, president of the New York Society of Fine and Applied Art, the non-commercial element of late, there has been an effort to bring the artistic and the commercial factions together, to show that they are beginning to understand and make friends. Parsons, author of "The Psychology of Dress," observes: "It appears that man is, after all, mostly the result of the public opinion, and that he will conform, unless forced to do otherwise, precisely what he is expected to do."

Parsons' theory (by which he means a woman's also) "like other things to his needs, are his man's response to a demand for beauty, and by the results he must be judged, whether judged by the public or by a simple standard of good taste."

children are growing up now, and they say I don't look as stylish as other mothers," she almost wept. "But I've given all my thoughts to them, and I haven't bothered about how I looked. Can you make me over--so that they will be proud of me?" A profound sociological as well as a psychological problem that--all to be solved by this one little man and his needle and shears!

"If, as you say, women dress to please men, is it men at large--the public--or is it their husbands?" occurred to me.

To Please Their Husbands. The American husband is a marvel of devotion, anyway. He is incredible to certain other nationalities. You could hardly believe what a keen interest he has in his wife's appearance. The number of husbands who accompany their wives here for fittings, to observe and help choose and pass upon results is well-reassuring to the cynic. Why shouldn't the American woman enjoy and encourage such devotion? Now there is a Mrs. A. (naming a famous manufacturer of a certain mill product, used from coast to coast). Mr. A. likes a great deal of smartness. He insists that she shall have a large variety of gowns, and extremely handsome ones. But she was formerly the wife of R. (an automobile millionaire) and R. always wanted her to dress as demurely as a Quaker. It has been my task to adapt my designs to the tastes of two husbands in succession.

"It would be hard to overestimate the effect of clothes upon the wearer," he rambled on. "It's according to the law of suggestion. I suppose--but it didn't take Coue to find it out. It's a truth as old as history, and many have recognized it. Here's an instance of the connection between the mood and the wearer of clothes."

He tossed over a pile of letters and drew forth one bearing a famous address at the top. It was from the secretary of a distinguished invalid.

"Mrs. --- has been confined to her room for so long that, since she is at last able to travel, she desires you to submit to her some samples of lively and cheerful colors for several new gowns," he read.

"That lady has always worn very quiet colors," he explained. "Chiefly gray. But now her weary and suffering spirit longs for something cheerful. Can you wonder? And I feel it my responsibility to aid her convalescence--for the right note, one of subdued cheerfulness, will be a factor in her recovery. I firmly believe."

The Psychology of Dress. "Caruso once said to me: 'Sometimes I feel deeply depressed, dull and burdened as I approach the opera house, and it seems impossible to go forward with my task. But let me don the robe of royalty and at once I become the king that my costume ordains. I step forward, full of power. It is the psychological effect of dress.'"

"Will America develop a school of dress design, or must she continue to derive from others?" I drifted.

"She has it already," with asperity. "Paris is wearing skirts almost to the ground, and extreme bouffante effects--why not America? Because she is independent at last, she does as she pleases, she refuses to accept what she does not like. Paris or no Paris."

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

The Pup.
H'E'S an everlasting nuisance as he litters up the place and his looks are a reflection upon all the canine race, for his hair is rough and shaggy and he's of a mongrel breed; he is nothing like the pampered pet, who's cranky as to feed. He has plans, it seems, to make a boneyard in some favored spot; bones of every size and contour clutter up our high-priced lot. Then, his tastes seem quite peculiar, for he has the strangest friends; but, although their looks are shocking, it must be he comprehends something of their inner virtues, which are hid from human sight, for he brings them from the byways with a rapturous delight; keeps them here for hours on hours making an unearthly noise which provokes delighted plaudits from a gang of ragged boys. He's an everlasting nuisance and I vow, 'most every day, that I'll send that trifling puppy to some region far away, to some place where bones are not taboo; thus I dream about the happiness with which I'll say adieu. There's a rag-man I've selected, who would be the very chap, for I think that his profession matches well the puppy's map. As the master of this canine he would play a fitting part; how I'd love to put it over, but--I never had the heart! For that puppy has a funny way of coming up to me, standing rubbing with his shaggy head against my foot or knee; looking up with eager, wistful eyes right straight into my own, till I say, 'All right, old fellow, go and get another bone!'

WINIFRED BLACK TALKS ABOUT "One Touch of Nature"

B. SCHALL, of Sacramento, California, was arrested for speeding the other day. But when they took him to court Mr. Schall told the judge that maybe he was speeding and didn't realize it.
"My wife was waiting for me and she told me to 'get right home,'" said Mr. Schall.
"How old are you?" asked the judge.
"Twenty years old," said Mr. Schall.
"How long have you been married?"
"Two weeks," said Mr. Schall.
"Dismissed," said the judge. "Be a little more careful next time."
And to look at the judge they say you'd never think he'd ever been a sentimental bridegroom himself.
But you never can tell, can you?

WINIFRED BLACK

The World Loves Lovers.
The other day in the street car I saw a goose of a girl and a gump of a boy sitting side by side too happy to speak, and so young and inexperienced that you could look right at them and tell that they were just that day engaged and wanted everyone to know it and were afraid somebody would find out about it and hoped they could be married soon and were scared almost to death to even think about it. You ought to have seen the people in that car.
There was one man in particular. A sleek, slick, smart, hard-featured fellow with a pair of eyes like gimlets and a diamond ring on his finger that looked as if he'd won it in a raffle somewhere.
He looked at the conductor and the conductor looked at him and both of them smiled and the gimlet-eyed man winked a kindly human kind of wink--and neither of them would have let the goose and the gump see them for worlds.
Yes, it's a pretty human sort of world after all.
We all growled at each other down at the office the other day. There was something wrong with the weather and the rooms were cold and the chief was out of temper and the office boy had the toothache and the telephone girl had been up too late the night before and you could tell it at the very first syllable of the "hello," and nobody liked anybody and we were all wondering what it was all about--this life we cling to so desperately--when the door opened and in came Jessie.

Jessie was one of the stenographers a year ago.
Nice little thing--Jessie--not a beauty at all, but a fresh, smiling, rosy, competent, neat little creature. One day she told us that she was going to be married and we all congratulated her and sent our congratulations to the man and we took up a collection and sent a wedding present--and that was that.
And there was a new stenographer almost as good as Jessie, but not quite as pretty and something went wrong with the favorite office stocks and everybody blamed everybody else and--the door opened yesterday and in she walked--after she'd been gone a year.
Jessie, the neat and competent. And she held in her arms the funniest little, chubbier little, neatest little Jessie you ever saw. And I'll vow if that little Jessie wasn't beginning to look competent already.
And we crowded around the two Jessies and quarreled about who was to hold the baby first, and laughed and teased Jessie the elder and made eyes at little Jessie and lo! the sharp something in the air was gone, and we were all friends and all happy again.
What a queer, mechanical world we do build up around us, we moderns.
How we put on and wear a mask and hide everything that's decent and kind and real and pretend to be everything that's cold and cynical and unreal.
But all at once there's a young couple in love or there's a bride and groom or there's a baby smiling somewhere over somebody's proud shoulder--and we're human again.
I'm glad the judge out in California didn't fine Mr. Newlywed for hurrying home to his wife too fast--aren't you?

Emotions were given us for enjoyment, not to rule our actions.
The least among you is happier than he with great wealth but with sin on his soul.
As the years go by and my gray hair comes, my sense of humor improves.

and many other uses for FAB

Use FAB for baby's garments which must be clean and soft. Baby Hospitals advise boiling diapers to prevent rash.

Thin hosiery wears better if washed often. With FAB you need not rub. Do not dry over radiator or stove.

FAB suds do not run colors that are fast in plain warm water under the same conditions. With FAB the finish of fine materials is preserved.

Delicate china and glass washed with FAB are shiningly clean. And your hands stay soft and smooth.

FAB makes thick shampoo suds by reason of its coconut oil. Rinses easily and leaves the hair soft and glossy.

Here is a better way to wash Woolens this Winter

Any soap will take dirt out. But only certain qualities in soap will preserve the flexible, natural texture of fine woolens--and their fluffy warmth, too.

FAB, the soap flakes made with coconut oil, gives soft, silky suds that flow freely back and forth through the cloth without rubbing. FAB dissolves completely so that it rinses all out--there are no bits left to stick to the threads and spot or mat them. The dirt is all rinsed out too, and the fresh, new look of the material is restored.

This winter, with the vogue for knitted frocks, suits and other garments, it is more important than ever that you know how best to wash your woolens.

The only way you can find out how good FAB is, is by using it. You can do this easily. If your grocer happens to be out of FAB today we will supply you ourselves. Simply send the coupon below for a box of these modern soap flakes, enough for several washings of your fine woolen things.

A New Help is Now Offered You

If you have any puzzling questions about how to wash this or that article, let us advise you. Our answer to your letter will be based on our years of experience with soaps and washing. Until today, science and trained experience have offered you little or no direct, personal help in such matters. Now, your own washing problems will be answered directly by this great soap house, established more than a century ago. Address FAB Household Service, Colgate & Co., Department N. P., 199 Fulton Street, New York City.
